VILLA FORCING BATTLE

FIGHT GAG RULE ON CANAL

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Encouraged by the support of Speaker Clark in declaring against the rule to limit debate to the repeal of the free tolls provision in the Panama Canal act, opponents of the administration returned to the attack when the House met today.

Friends of the rule rallied to its defence and the most exciting session since President Wilson took office was expected.

There was a steady stream of visitors to the gallery and every seat was filled long before the opening of the House, the spectators anticipating a history-making discussion.

Under the agreement putting the rule before the House the measure was to be under fire for one more hour. The statement of the Speaker reiterating his opposition to gag rules, such as a few years ago accomplished the overthrow of the Republican House machine, had complicated matters and was expected to line up votes against the rule, though the administration leaders still predicted victory.

FINAL VOTE DELAYED.

With prospects of two rollcalls before disposing of the rule, it was estimated that the vote on the repeal bill proper could not be reached before next Tuesday afternoon or evening. Discussion of the repeal proposal will begin late today, and twenty hours of stirring oratory is ahead.

Representative Underwood, the majority leader, who is opposed to the repeal plan, has been selected to con-

WIDOW OF KEITH NEAR COLLAPSE

A. Paul Keith started from Palm Beach, Fla., today with the body of his father, Benjamin Franklin Keith, whose sudden death of heart disease at the Breakers' Hotel ended the wonderful career of a man who accumulated $30,000,000 and who became the greatest figure in vaudeville in the old world or the new.

B. F. Keith, as he was familiarly known to the theatre-going public and to vaudeville interests the world over, owned thirty-five theatres and was interested in about 1,000 others through his position as head of the United Booking Office.

This enormous business will be continued without change, so far as its connection with the general public is concerned.

Several months ago Mr. Keith's son, A. Paul Keith, took his father's place as head of the Keith's corporation. E. F. Albee, general manager of the Keith interests, has been associated with these enterprises for over thirty years.

WIDOW NEAR COLLAPSE.

Dispatches today from Palm Beach say that Mr. Keith's young widow is in a condition bordering on hysteria. She was formerly Miss Ethel Reid Chase, daughter of F. R. Chase, a Washington theatre man.

On October 29 Mr. Keith and Miss Chase were married aboard the Keith private yacht, the Nahmeyoska, which was lying in the Potomac river. The ceremony was performed by Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, chaplain of the United States Senate, in the presence of a few relatives.

Mr. Keith was then sixty-seven and

Cambridge Beats Oxford, 6 to 4; Taber Loses Twice

LONDON, March 27.—Cambridge beat Oxford, 6 to 4, in their annual track and field meet today. This broke a tie of two years past. A record-breaking crowd, including many British and foreign notables and hundreds of Americans, saw the classic. New records were made in the long jump and the three-mile run.

Oxford was reinforced by three American Rhodes scholars—V. B. Hawes of Rutgers, Norman S. Taber of Brown and E. T. Adams of Baylor. They were entered in five of the ten events. Adams won the hammer throw and Havens the hurdle race. Those two were all the firsts the Americans captured.

Taber was beaten by Atkinson in the half-mile and by Jackson, the famous miler, in 4m. 23 1-5s. in the mile. Taber's two defeats were the greatest disappointment to the throng of Americans who saw the meet.

Jeweler Bigelow's Son Loses Right Foot

Running to catch a train today at the Chestnut Hill station of the Boston & Albany Railroad, Tolman Bigelow, seventeen-year-old son of Alanson Bigelow, of Bigelow-Kennard Company, slipped and fell. His right foot was crushed by the wheels of the rear coach and had to be amputated later at the Bigelow home on Hammond street, Chestnut Hill.

Militant Torch for Cricket Pavilion

LONDON, March 27.—Militant suffragettes renewed their arson activities in England today. They set fire to the Sandwick Cricket Pavilion, and great damage was done, though the structure was saved from total destruction.

Gilchrist Buys Out Simpson, Crawford

Gilchrist Company of this city, with the Gimbel Brothers of New York, have purchased the entire stock of merchandise of Simpson, Crawford & Co., one of the New York Siegel concerns, for $572,000, according to information received in this city last night from Felix Vorenberg, the representative of the company in New York. The purchase is subject to confirmation by the court at its session next Monday.

'NO CABAL CAN RUN ENGLAND'

LONDON, March 27.—"It is the duty of every officer and soldier to obey all commands from the proper channels to aid the civil power."

While cheer after cheer resounded through the House of Commons this afternoon, Premier Asquith served this notice upon the army that Parliament is to govern England, and that it will not be swerved from its purposes by a "military cabal."

The Liberals in the House went wild with enthusiasm over the announcement, which showed that the government had altered in no way its determination to deal with the Ulster situation without issuing any guarantee to the officers and troops.

The premier made his statement before a crowded chamber. The gallries were filled to overflowing. The premier apologized to the house for his inability to make his statement earlier, stating that it was due to the length of the cabinet meeting which had been caused by the resignation of Field Marshal Sir John French and Lieutenant-General Sir John Denton Ewart.

The premier then announced that he had asked both these officers to reconsider their resignations. This was taken to mean that the cabinet had decided to avert any army crisis if possible, but the premier's next utterance revealed that the government is prepared to act.

"The army council today issued an order," he said, "that no officer and no soldier shall be questioned by his superiors regarding his attitude in the event of being asked to obey orders depending on hypothetical considerations.

"No officer or soldier shall in the future request assurances regarding orders he might be requested to carry out. It shall be the duty of every officer and soldier to obey all commands from the proper channels to aid the civil powers."

It was for giving such assurances to General Hubert Gough and the officers of Curragh that Secretary of War Seely, Field Marshal French and Lieutenant General Ewart were assured by the premier, his criticism resulting in the proffer of resignations from the three men.

Doctors Baffled by Girl in Tango Coma

NEW YORK, March 27.—Doctors today were baffled in their efforts to bring Miss Lulu Komel, aged 18, out of the coma into which she went last night as the result of over-excitement due to her work as floor director at the Tango Club girls' ball. Up to noon she had been in an unconscious condition for over fifteen hours.

Report Central Is to Let Thousands Go

The New York Central's new passenger train schedule went into effect last Sunday, and shows a decided cut in number of through and local trains. It is said thousands of men have been laid off in all departments.

ACTRESS DEAD IN HOTEL

Mrs. Alfred Grady, actress and singer, died suddenly early today at the Hotel Hollis and Medical Examiner Levy is investigating. Medical Examiner Levy was notified of the case by the police, and the body is at the City Hospital Morgue, where an autopsy may be ordered.

Mrs. Grady is known to theatregoers as Miss Nonie Higgins. Her husband, Al Grady, plays the part of the "Puffy Bear" in "The Poor Little Rich Girl," now playing at the Hollis.

Mrs. Grady was twenty-nine years old and the daughter of the late Henry E. Higgins, who was the first musical director to produce Rice's "Evangeline" in America. She had been singing in the Hotel Hollis cafe ever since she came to Boston with her husband on March 16. Her mother, Mrs. Annie Higgins, and a sister, live at No. 127 Riverside drive, New York city.

Mrs. Grady has played different parts in "The Rose Maid," "Buster Brown," "The Newly Weds," "Dick Whittington," and other musical comedies. Al Grady, her husband, is one of the best known animal delineators in the profession, having played "Tige" in "Buster Brown," "The Cat" in "Dick Whittington," "The Newly Wed's Baby" and various bear stunts.

Here is the story as given to the police when they began to investigate:

After singing last night as usual, Mrs. Grady retired to her room. She complained of feeling ill and her husband applied simple remedies he having been a medical student at Bufalo University in his early days.

About 3 o'clock this morning Mrs. Grady had a fainting spell in the bath room. Mr. Grady carried her to bed and summoned a doctor, but, when Dr. Henry Williams arrived, Mrs. Grady was dead.

Mrs. Grady, the police were told, appeared to be in her usual health last evening, and delighted a large gathering of theatre-goers at the Hollis Cafe after the performance.

She was a very lovable character, and was warmly regarded by all members of the company. The Gradys had been married about three years.

The manager of the "Poor Little Rich Girl" company said that the performance would go on as usual tonight.

More New Haven Money for Wyman

Bruce Wyman of Cambridge, the Harvard professor who resigned when it became known that he had received huge fees from the New Haven at the time he was assisting in planning railroad legislation, received $833.33 from the Boston & Maine in November and December last, according to figures filed by the railroad with the Public Service Commission today.

Wyman was paid for work as "consulting counsel" $800 on November 1, as salary, and $333 34 on December 1, 1913, salary. Richard Olney was paid $5,000 January 6, 1914, on account of "consultations, etc.," for year ended December 31, 1913. Coolidge & Hight received $3,000 on January 14, 1914, on account of services for the six months ended December 31, 1913.

James O. Fagan received $249 in November on account of services and expenses for literary work, and $139 in December. Fagan is the lawyer-man whose articles on railroad life and work have won him national recognition.

WIFE'S SUICIDE ENDS LOVE AND DIVORCE SUITS

Mrs. Helen Fishel shot herself in her room at No. 8 Bowdoin street today, and was found dead on her bed. She had a divorce suit pending against her husband, a $25,000 alienation suit against a Worcester woman, and it was reported that her husband had brought about her arrest after setting detectives on her trail.

The woman came down to the office of the apartment where she lived early today and mailed several letters. She returned to her room; and a little later a lawyer and a bondsman came to see her.

An attendant at the apartment house went upstairs to call Mrs. Fishel, and found her dead. A revolver lay by her side.

Neighbors had noticed that Mrs. Fishel was melancholy for two days. Her troubles culminated, it is supposed, when the haberdashery store she conducted at No. 4 Bowdoin street closed.

REBELS RENEW ATTACK

EL VERJIL, State of Durango, March 26, via Juarez, March 27.—(Delayed by censor)—The Constitutionalists won a sweeping victory today, capturing Gomez Palacio after one of the fiercest battles that has taken place in the campaign against Torreon.

The loss of life on both sides was heavy.

The Federals put up a desperate fight, but could not withstand the vigorous attack of the combined Constitutionalist forces, and were finally forced to take refuge in the city of Torreon itself.

Fall River Man Held on Orphan's Charges

FALL RIVER, March 27.—As a result of charges made to the police by Jessie Moffett, a nineteen-year-old orphan, John G. Lage, forty, a prominent business man, was arraigned on a complaint alleging a violation of the acts dealing with the enticing of women for immoral purposes. A plea of not guilty was entered, and the case continued until a week from today. The prisoner is married and has two children.

Finds Work for Many Thousands

One of the pleasantest facts demonstrated by the Boston American is the ready way in which it provides competent help of all kinds for business men, professional men, manufacturers and the home.

It seldom falls, and it is good to know that those in search of employment, or those who seek to better themselves when engaged, look to the American for the assistance it renders so effectively and continuously.

The American is the "Help Wanted" directory of Boston.

It has become such through faithful service to employer and employe. Which means that if you want help—skilled or unskilled—you have but to leave an ad with any of the American's "Want Ad" stations, the branch office at 244 Washington street, Main office at 30 Summer street, or storm and is again bombarding the city with his big guns, hoping to force the surrender of General Velasco by shattering his fortifications and rendering his artillery useless, according to the latest news received by the Constitutionalist officers in Juarez.

Fears felt by the Constitutionalists that Villa had met with a crushing defeat were removed by a dispatch from the rebel commander stating that he would be in complete possession of Torreon and the entire Federal garrison "Not later than Saturday. The dispatch was received by Governor Chao at Juarez and in it Villa said:

"I do not believe the Federals can withstand the fearful bombardment going on from all sides longer than that."

RECAPTURE GOMEZ PALACIO.

An earlied dispatch had announced the recapture of Gomez Palacio by the Constitutionalists, and Governor Chao said today that he no longer had any doubt of the capture of Torreon.

The Governor ordered out two special trains to rush with material for rebuilding the railroad and telegraph lines from El Verjil to Gomez Palacio. Villa had asked for this material at once.

Consul Diebold, President Huerta's representative here, maintained that the Federals were more than holding their own, but admitted that he had received no official advice on which to base his claims.

The embargo set up by General Villa against the newspaper correspondents was held today. The first official explanation was given out at telegraph headquarters in Juarez this forenoon, when Constitutionalist officers said that Villa had established the censorship in order to be absolutely impartial, because it would be impossible for all the correspondents to get their stories through.

BLOCK VILLASCO'S RETREAT.

Railway officials were notified early in the day that railway and telegraphic communication with Mexico City had been cut north of Monclova, indicating rebel activity in the section hitherto held by the Federals.

This news was taken as confirmatory that General Villa had sent a large force to capture Saltillo to prevent the retreat of General Velasco's troops to that point.

COMPLETE VICTORY BY FEDERALS AT TORREON, SAYS BLANQUET

MEXICO CITY, March 27.—Minister of War Blanquet today announced that the Federal troops had won a complete victory over the rebels at Torreon. He issued this statement:

"I can't give the details, but the triumph of the Federal forces at Torreon is complete."

The statement was accepted with reserve as the International News Service learned that the wires to Torreon were not working today and that communication with that city was made only ten minutes on Thursday. The message received by the government at that time was kept secret.

SWEEPING VICTORIES FOR THE FEDERALS IN THREE LAST FIGHTS

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Constitutionalists have been defeated in three battles in Mexico within the past week, according to official advices received at the Mexican embassy here today. The report sent by the Mexican consul-general at El Paso, Texas, indicated that the rebels had been driven out of Torreon and decisively defeated near Monclova where they lost more than 1,000 men. The dispatch was given out by Charge d'Affaires Algara and read:

"Rebels decisively defeated at Torreon, being driven back with great loss; government has rushed 5,000 troops from Saltillo under command of General Mouri. Rebels also defeated near Monclova, losing more than 1,000 men. Government troops victorious in State of Tamaulipas. Rebels have been defeated in several minor engagements."

HUNT MAN SEEN WITH SALEM GIRL

Arthur Argeros of Salem, who was arrested on a warrant charging the murder of pretty twenty-year-old Elini Erinis, will be brought into the Salem Court tomorrow for a hearing.

The police, who have been investigating what were believed to have been mysterious circumstances surrounding the finding of the girl's body in the sea at Salem Willows, today asserted they had found strong substantiation of the original suicide theory. Argeros, who was not allowed to plead at an earlier court appearance and was held without bail, today declared he would be set free.

An autopsy is held in abeyance, pending the discovery of any further details. District Attorney Atwill says the body of the girl shows no bruises or marks of any kind.

Argeros has given an account of his time on Wednesday to the police, from the moment he arose until he retired.

"If she was seen with a man at the beach, it was not I," he says.

Michael Erinis, to whom Argeros says he gave the girl's letters on Wednesday morning, claims that he destroyed them as soon as received.

The police investigated statements of Argeros that he appealed to Miss Erinis' brothers to be spared her unwelcome attentions. They are also looking into the charge that the brothers criticised the young woman the night before she disappeared.

FARLOW WILL BE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALER

Alfred Farlow, general manager of the committee on publications of the Christian Science Church, announces that his reason for resigning that position is not on account of ill-health, as has been reported, but solely because he wishes to retire from active public life and assume the more inconspicuous position of Christian Science Healer on his own account.

At his palatial home, No. 167 Commonwealth avenue, Newton, overlooking the Chestnut Hill reservoir, Mr. Farlow made this statement today.

"I am retiring from the service of the Christian Science Publications Committee after fifteen years of hard work as manager of that branch of the movement in order to follow my long neglected inclination to practice the healing side of Christian Science, which I consider the most important and best loved phase of the whole philosophy.

MENTALLY TIRED.

"More than a year ago I asked the officials of the church for a leave of absence. I hadn't had a vacation for thirteen years, and was mentally tired —in fact, worn to a frazzle, as they say in business circles. This was granted me.

"After a year of foreign travel I returned to Boston and found things had been running so smoothly in my absence that my presence did not seem to me to be any longer necessary to the proper carrying on of the work. Others could do the work as well as myself.

"Then it was that I determined to relinquish my position and retire from the active work of the movement. I had always had a penchant for the healing side of Christian Science, and here seemed to be a good opportunity to put my desires into effect. Hence my resignation.

"Only the utmost kindness and respect has been meted out to me by the Christian Science officials. The most tender and cordial relations have always existed between the officers of the Mother Church and myself. They have always given me their heartiest good will and support. Any rumor of friction as the cause of my resignation is absolutely without foundation.

IN BEST OF HEALTH.

"You can see for yourself that I am in the best of health; so that rumor as the reason for my resignation is quite unfounded. I have not retired from the movement by any means; and this resignation only means a transfer of my activities to another field.

"I have been a practioner of the Science for many years in a quiet way. Now I can give my whole time to it. It is fascinating and wonderfully successful.

"I merely have a feeling that I have served in public life long enough, and I now shall seek the less strenuous life of a private practioner. My former work will, I am sure, be carried on just as successfully by other hands."

DAUGHTER OF PROF. WORTHEN TO BE BRIDE

HANOVER, N. H., March 27.—Every Dartmouth man is today congratulating and secretly envying W. G. Knapp, who was graduated two years ago, as a result of the announcement of his engagement to Mary Worthen, daughter of "Tute" Worthen, the best-loved professor in college.

Young Knapp is secretary to President Nichols. Miss Worthen, who is a Smith graduate, is a charming girl, extremely beautiful and popular.

She is about twenty-one. Her father, Professor T. W. D. Worthen of the mathematics department, has been called "Tute" since anyone remembers. His two sons, Rhodes Scholars, have likwise been "Tute" to their classmates, and Miss Worthen herself escaped being nicknamed "Tute" only by the narrowest margin.

It is expected they will be married shortly after Commencement in June.

FEAR MISSING M'CARRICK BOY WAS KILLED

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—All hopes that eight-year-old Warren McCarrick, who disappeared more than two weeks ago, will ever be found alive, were practically abandoned today. All clews have failed, and the detectives working on the case admitted that hereafter they will have only a blind trail to follow.

The belief that the child was drowned in the Schuylkill or was murdered by his abductors is becoming so strong that efforts will be made to amend the offer of a $5,000 reward made by the city. This provides that the money shall be paid for the return of the boy alive, but those who believe the child dead want it changed to cover the finding of the body.

Relatives of the boy oppose this plan, fearing that if he is being held by kidnapers they might kill him and then claim the reward.

UNSIGNED NOTE LED TO SHOOTING OF M. CALMETTE

PARIS, March 27.—Declaring that Editor Calmette of the Figaro baited her husband, and that her act was prompted by an unsigned letter, Mme. Caillaux broke into tears on the witness stand. She reminded the judge of what Calmette had printed about the "Thy Joe" letter.

Amid her tears, she continued:

"I regret profoundly the consequences of my act. I would prefer a thousand times that the campaign had continued rather than I should have killed M. Calmette. It is impossible to find in my act another cause than that which I have given."

"In attacking your husband," said Magistrate Boucard, "M. Calmette was fighting the politician, not the private citizen. Moreover, the letter signed 'Thy Joe' concerned another woman."

"Yes," responded Mme. Caillaux, "but it was I who succeeded that woman as the wife of M. Caillaux. I will recall to you how M. Calmette, in an article on March 16, bantered my husband regarding the intimate nature of this letter. That is not politics."

GOT ANONYMOUS LETTER.

Mme. Caillaux told the magistrate she had received, March 15, an anonymous letter which she destroyed, informing her of the imminent publication of letters concerning her.

Asked by M. Boucard to enlighten him regarding the contents of the letters, the publication of which she feared, Mme. Caillaux said they concerned the private life of her husband and herself.

"Then why did you not speak to M. Calmette about the letters before shooting him?" the magistrate asked.

"I lost all idea of the object of my visit when I entered his office. I lost my head and fired," replied Mme. Caillaux.

HUNGER AFFECTED STATEMENT.

M. Boucard reminded Mme. Caillaux that her statements to him were inconsistent with those she made to the police commisary, an hour after the shooting had occurred.

Madame Caillaux replied:

"That may well be. I had no luncheon or dinner. This fact, and the emotion which overpowered me, made it impossible for me to give the commissary a coherent explanation. I meant to shoot. M. Calmette gave me no satisfaction, but I did not mean to kill him."

Examined as to why she had practiced pistol shooting, Mme. Caillaux replied: "I did not practice with the object of learning to shoot, but merely to familiarize myself with the working of the automatic pistol."

The inquiry into the Rochette affair by the special committee of deputies was virtually concluded and a report will be presented to the Chamber at an early date.

"I lost my head and fired," testified Mme. Caillaux, telling the court how she killed the editor of the Figaro. Those who knew Mme. Caillaux as a mild and gentle woman wonder at her action in shooting down Calmette

Democrats Condemn Tangoing Governor

ST. PAUL, March 27.—Democrats of McLeod County, in their platform, have this plank:

"We condemn the silly, blatant, venal and maudlin administration of Governor Eberhardt, whose junketing, tangoing, turkey-trotting, ballad-singing, song-writing antics and general lack of interest in and grasp of State affairs have aroused the contempt of all thinking men and made the State administration the laughing stock of the nation."

Cartoons Win Pardon for Check Swindler

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 27. — Evan Burton Johnson, who pleaded guilty to passing a worthless check a year ago, and was sentenced to four years, has had his prison term commuted as a result of drawing over 200 cartoons portraying his views of penal servitude and politics. Some of the most powerful of his sketches found their way to the executive office.

Had Polygamy Belief but Didn't Want Wife

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 27.—"Do you believe in polygamy?" asked County Judge Cole in examining Anthony Solitaire, an applicant for naturalization, papers.

"I don't know what you mean," he answered.

"Don't you think a man ought to have more than one wife?" was the explanation.

"Some do. I don't want any," Solitaire shot back.

"Passed," responded the court.

DUCHESS SAYS VOTES WON'T BAR BABIES

PARIS, March 27.—Mrs. Bessie Van Vorst, the American author, and the Dowager Duchess D'Uzes, are in fervid disputes over an article Mrs. Van Vorst wrote for "Le Gaulois," entitled "The Bankruptcy of American femininism." The principal point in the article is that American suffragettes think they can live independent of man, and escape the duties of motherhood.

The Duchess D'Uzes, one of the most prominent hostesses in France, who figures in American society, pours scorn on Mrs. Van Vorst's contention and retorts:

"Let me smile at the idea that when women vote they will wish to cease to bear children. Nothing will ever tear the maternal fibre from the heart of woman. Be her education ever so brilliant she will never forget the joy of hearing from baby lips that word 'mother' which is the essence of sublimest love.

"At Broken Hill, Australia, where women vote, the birth rate is thirty-nine per 10,000, the highest in the world. Having no patience with the English militant suffragettes, the Duchess dismisses them as "lunatics."

Would Use Warships in Coast Commerce

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The use of American warships for commercial traffic between the United States and ports of South America was proposed by Senator Weeks in a resolution introduced in the Senate and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs. Senator Weeks would have two cruisers and three scout cruisers assigned to this service, to carry mails, passengers and freight.

Lowell's Round Court House Plan Accepted

NEW YORK, March 27.—The justices of the Supreme Court have decided to withdraw their opposition to the plan for a $15,000,000 circular court house. The plan, drawn by Guy Lowell of Boston, was at first opposed on the ground that a circular building would not afford as much light and ventilation as a square structure.

AGE PUZZLE HERE

Of Course, It Can Be Done

NEW BRAIN TEASER

Puzzle-solvers, here's the latest in brain-twisters. Try it:

I am twice as old as you were when I was as old as you are now, and our combined ages is 100 years. What is the age of each?

It's a corker—a fit successor to that skill-defying "army messenger" problem and that other super-cerebral "calendar clock" puzzle.

Here's what one woman writes:

It simply can't be done. Why, I worked all night nearly, trying to figure out how old you are if I am twice as old as you were when I was as old as you—there, I am at it again."

For the benefit of those who are of a like opinion it may be said that the problem can be worked out to an answer which proves itself.

Try this brain-teaser and address your answers to the Age Puzzle Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

San Francisco Is Bachelors' Heaven

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Next to Newport, R. I., San Francisco has more bachelors than any other city in the country. MRS. GARDNER'S NOVEL GIFTS TO AID TOY THEATRE

A beautiful wrought iron balustrade and two artistic stairways, which have been among the interesting features of the music room at Mrs. John L. Gardner's palace in the Fenway, have been given by her to the Toy Theatre for incorporation in the decorative scheme of its new building on Dartmouth street.

In demolishing the room recently to make more space for museum purposes she found it necessary to remove the balcony. The balustrade and stairways which had formed a part of the balcony were especially designed at the expense of several thousand dollars and their architectural merit has long been recognized

Girl in $45,000 Suit Tells of Injuries

Miss Helen Regan, twenty, who fainted in the Superior Court while telling of injuries she received, today again took the stand to complete her story. With her father she is suing the Superb Theatre on Columbus avenue, Roxbury Crossing, for $45,000. Miss Regan alleges that she was seriously injured when a board fell on her while repairs were being made upon the theatre.

QUINCY YACHT CLUBMAN WEDS HOSPITAL NURSE

Friends were surprised today by news of the marriage of Miss Eleanor F. Andrews of the Quincy City Hospital and Frank F. Taylor, commodore of the Wollaston Yacht Club. The wedding took place Tuesday, but was not at once announced, as the groom is not yet fully recovered from the effects of an attack of pneumonia, through which Miss Andrews nursed him.

When Taylor fell ill Miss Andrews was assigned as his nurse. Their romance followed.

The couple were married by the Rev. W. J. Rutledge of South Boston, at the home of Mr. Taylor, No. 141 Broomfield street, Quincy.

Jack Geraghty Loses Grocery Bill Fight

An execution for $42.45 has been issued on the property of John E. Geraghty of Woburn, who eloped with Elsie French of Newport, in a suit brought by the S. S. Pierce Company to recover on a bill of $13.82 for groceries.

The court assessed damages at $29.82, including interest from September 1 last, and costs of $12.63.

For Freckled, Rough or Spotty Complexions

The freckling, discoloring or roughening to which delicate skins are subject after exposure to wind or sun, often appearing in early spring, may readily be gotten rid of. Mercolized wax, applied like cold cream, the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured skin. Get an ounce of the wax at any druggists. There's no more effective way of handling freckles or other cutaneous defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand new, spotless, pinkly beautiful face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness, are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathing the face in this produces a truly marvelous transformation.

SENSATIONAL ATTACK IS MADE ON KING GEORGE

"THE MAN" WARNED FOR "INTERFERING"

DUBLIN, March 27.—Naval activity in the Ulster crisis was renewed by the British government today. The warships Foresight and Adventure arrived at Belfast Lough and relieved the Attentive and Pathfinder. It is understood that the last-named vessels will remain off the coast, however, to be available in an emergency. The Foresight is a fast cruiser and the Adventure is a gunboat that can enter the smaller harbors.

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, March 27.—King George is attacked in a letter from Arthur Lynch, M. P., published today in the Daily Citizen, a Labor newspaper.

Without naming the King the author of the letter referred to him as "the man," as Cromwell referred to Charles I. before that monarch was beheaded.

Heading his letter "The name you must not mention," Lynch says:

"The Man has interefered in our affairs. He has brought the Liberal party to the verge of ruin, but it is not etiquette to mention that man's name, to ask where he comes from, by whom he is charged with wisdom, whence he gets his mandate or why he is there."

The letter caused a sensation and the sale of the paper was redoubled.

GEN. GOUGH CALLED BACK.

General Hubert Gough, the officer who returned to Curragh after getting from Secretary of War Seely and the army council a guarantee that Ulster troops would not be called upon to fight the people of Ulster, left Curragh for London today.

He is said to have been summoned by the war office which has revoked the guarantee.

Premier Asquith called a meeting of the Cabinet today to clear the tangle caused by the resignation of Field Marshal Sir John French and Lieutenant General Sir John Denton Ewart from the army.

Both officers were summoned to the Premier's residence while the cabinet was sitting and remained for some time. The ministers remained in session after the generals left, and the cabinet council was prolonged to such length that official announcement was made the Premier would be unable to make his promised statement on the army crisis until late in the afternoon.

Conflicting reports were circulated after the cabinet meeting. It was rumored that the Premier had asked both officers to withdraw their resignations, but both had refused to do so.

The general opinion prevailed today that Premier Asquith had been strengthened in his position by the action of Field Marshal French and General Ewarts. Who had given the government an opportunity to wage a campaign on the ground that the issue had narrowed down to a conflict between the army and Parliament.

The calling of a second Cabinet meeting in the afternoon added to the uncertainty over the ministerial and army situation. Field Marshal French and General Ewart were again summoned to the Premier's home and the Premier and his colleagues conferred at length with them.

Both officers were calm as they left Downing street. The Cabinet meeting broke up shortly afterward.

HOUSE LOBBY CROWDED.

The prolonged sitting of the Cabinet gave rise to reports in official circles that grave dissent had developed among the ministers as to the manner in which to deal with the army crisis.

The lobby of the House of Commons was crowded long before the hour set for the convening of Parliament, and a great throng gathered in Downing street about the home of the Premier.

After going to the war office from Premier Asquith's residence, Field Marshal French returned to the Cabinet meeting, which ended after sitting for two hours and a half, the longest session that has marked the present crisis.

Most of the ministers went at once to the House of Commons, which occupied itself with routine work while awaiting the Premier's statement. It was regarded as significant, however, that both Secretary of War Seely and Field Marshal French remained with the Premier after the others Cabinet ministers left.

The members of Parliament were in a high state of excitement over the delay in the arrival of the Premier, and gathered in groups in the lobbies.

HINT MINISTRY WILL QUIT.

The excitement among the members of Parliament was increased when the Press Association, a leading British news agency, sent out this bulletin:

"The postponement of Premier Asquith's statement has caused a grave impression. The Unionist leaders believe the government's resignation is imminent."

The Press Association was the first agency to secure the news that Field Marshal French and General Ewart had resigned.

GOVERNMENT MAY GO BEFORE COUNTRY ON "ARMY RULE" PLANKS

LONDON, March 27.—It is now generally believed the home rule bill, without the concessions to the Orange counties, will be quickly passed; that the Welsh disestablishment bill will also be taken up and passed, and that then the government will resign and appeal to the country in a general election.

With the issue of "army dictation" to campaign with the general belief is that the Liberal government would sweep the country, and that the Unionist forces would be shattered. In fact, the Unionists, in their desire to kill home rule by any method available, have overreached themselves and given the Liberals the most powerful weapon that any English party has had at its command in the present generation.

OPPOSITION TO KING.

While the army is still the centre of interest the temper of the Liberal, Radical and Labor supporters of the government makes the position of the King one which is in reality of more vital interest.

In case of a dissolution of Parliament at the present time in the present temper of the people, especially the Labor and Radical sections of the coalition, though dissatisfaction extends through all the political parties and even into the ranks of the Unionists themselves, nothing could prevent the most violent attacks on the King and army.

In view of the exhibition the army has given in the last few days of the exercise of political and class influence, any attempt to control the people in a political campaign would be of the utmost danger to the existing order, while failure to control would be of almost equal danger.

OPPOSITION BOOMERANG.

This is the situation Premier Asquith has to face, and it is one of far more importance than any mere desire to retain power for the Liberals or even to pass the home rule bill. In fact, the opposition, while playing for the defeat of the government's home rule scheme, has brought about a situation which is quite possible to result in the total destruction of all their most cherished ideals.

SHAW, CHESTERTON AND LORD NORTHCLIFFE GIVE HOME RULE OPINIONS

LONDON, March 27.—Lord Northcliffe, owner of many important English journals, in commenting on the Home Rule situation, said today:

"You cannot coerce the armed Protestants of Ulster. Their objection is to the application of the present Home Rule proposals to themselves, and I have little doubt that they will fight if necessary. I do not know whether the other side would fight, but I do know that for many months the North of Ireland people have been importing arms, ammunition and officers."

G. K. Chesterton, the author, who is a regular contributor to Socialist publications, said:

"The whole party system, especially the sham debate on Home Rule, is a fraud, and an intentionally lucrative fraud. Mr. Balfour and Lord Lansdowne work together in a whole-hearted way with Lloyd George and Lord Murray of Elibank to whitewash the wickedness of modern politics."

George Bernard Shaw gave his views on the crisis at a Socialist meeting at which he said, among other things:

"We three have met on the same platform in the reign of Queen Victoria, who was a Whig; in the reign of King Edward, who was a Liberal, and in the reign of King George, who is apparently a syndicalist. It shows that we are moving."

GALVIN RIDICULES WAR CRY BY ULSTER

Lord Northcliffe, the present owner of the London Times and of several other Tory-society journals in England, is out with a solemn warning that "Protestant Ulster" is going to fight when the home rule bill is passed.

"Protestant Ulster" will do nothing of the kind, for the plain reason that a strong percentage of the Protestants of Ulster are home rulers, with their numbers increasing every week.

Of course, as owner of the London Times, Lord Northcliffe could say nothing else and preserve the traditions of the class journal with which his money and his title—very recently conferred title at that—are so vitally associated.

The London Times has wabbled and wavered upon every great public issue that has come before the interests of the masses of the people, since its first day of issue, more than a century ago.

It has been Tory and then Liberal, and again Liberal and again Tory as many times as there are desks in its counting room. But on one question it has never wavered or wobbled. That question is Ireland.

With unblemished consistency, it has ever been an arch enemy of the Irish people, not only at home in their own land, but throughout the world, wherever the scattered children of the Gael have found a home.

The cause of Ireland, the hope and the progress never failed of an enemy, bitter, relentless, unscrupulous, while the London Times was to the fore. And today, through its Lord Northcliffe, it is true of its traditions.

THE BOAST OF '48.

Seventy years ago Daniel O'Connell said of this arch-organ of the Tories: "If I should ever see a line in the London Times, friendly to me or to the Irish cause, I would at once begin to examine my political conscience."

And the Irish people will never forget for many a generation to come, the foul boast of the London Times, during the awful famine years of 1847 and 1848:

"The Irish Catholic is going and going with a vengeance. Soon he will be as scarce in Ireland as the Red Indian is on the shores of Manhattan."

From the hour of that ghoulish boast down to the moment when it began its hounding to death of Charles Stewart Parnell, through its active and zealous attorney, Sir Edward Carson—the rioting Carson of today—the London Times has never wavered in its policy of hatred of the Irish race. Lord Northcliffe's words of gloom are not needed in the present crisis. The world knows where he stands, or it will know, before Ireland's present fight is over.

The stars in their courses are fighting for the just cause of home rule. One after the other, events are shaping themselves auspiciously for victory for the Liberals all over Great Britain.

The Liverpool Post, the great paper edited by Sir Edward Richard Russell, one of the best friends home rule has in all the world of journalism, is authority for the prediction that after the home rule bill is passed and also the bill for the disestablishment of the Episcopal church in Wales, Mr. Asquith will dissolve parliament and appeal to the country for a new mandate to carry out his great and progressive policies.

ELECTION IN JUNE.

If the Liverpool Post is right, and it usually is, there will be a general election in June.

It will be the greatest electoral battle England has seen since the days of Bright and Cobden. Look at the battle cry the Tories and Carson and the whole group of fiery reactionaries have given to the Liberals:

"The Army or the People. Which is to Rule?"

The answer to that appeal will be a sweep by the Liberals of three-fourths of the constituencies, from Wick in the north of Scotland down to the Isle of Wight. Mr. Asquith may well face the issue with confidence.

The Prime Minister, however, is not likely to dissolve Parliament until he has one more bill, besides home rule and Welsh disestablishment on the statute books. He will insist on his one-man one-vote bill and the holding of the general election on one day, as we do here in America.

This last would cost the Tories votes by the tens of thousands. For My Lord Duke This and His Grace the Earl of That and the Noble Viscount Something Else would have just one vote, no more, and one day to cast it, no more, just like all the common, ordinary, plain people, who are their fellow-citizens.

For that cry, "The Army or the People," the people of Great Britain should profoundly thank Sir Edward Carson, the shrewd political attorney of the Belfast mill sweaters, and the none too wise army "officers" who are now the derision of every war office in Europe.

$13.50

Several hundred suits in the purchase —absolutely new 1914 models worth $18.00 at $13.50—a diversified assortment, including every fabric and pattern from the staple Blue Serge to the Tartan Check—all sizes —regulars and stouts, 33 to 46.

Not an ordinary circumstance, by any means, this opportunity to buy new, stylish, sightly Spring Suits absolutely worth $18.00, for $13.50 just as the season is about to open.

It came about in this way: A prominent New York manufacturer, who makes our regular $18.00 suits, happened to receive a countermand for several hundred splendid garments after they had been made. Being willing to sacrifice these suits at a loss to himself, he gave our buyer the first opportunity. One look at the suits and he snapped them up, just as you will when you see their beauty and extraordinary value.

cludes the debate in opposition to the special rule. The Clark broadside and the Underwood protest, the members of Congress say, will cut down materially the Administration's strength.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Speaker Clark, to the consternation of the advocates of "gag rule" and surrender to Great Britain, has come out in favor of full and free debate. He thinks all other legislation sinks into insignificance when compared with the tolls repealing bill which the President seeks to put through the House with little debate and without explanation.

Speaker Clark, in an impressive signed statement, said:

"I am dead against the rule limiting debate to twenty hours on the tolls question. I intend to vote against it. I will not stultify myself by voting for any such rule. I led the fight to liberalize the rules and practices of the House, thereby imperilling my political future. We won that long and bitter fight, and it was the first Democratic victory in eighteen years. Time and time again I declared that I would not advocate a thing when in the minority that I would not advocate in the majority.

"The Democrats won the House in 1910, the first time in sixteen years. I was unanimously nominated for Speaker and elected by every Democratic vote in the House, with the hearty good will of every Republican, because they believe that I am a truthful man.

"In order to liberalize the rules and practices of the House I voluntarily relinquished a large portion of the powers of the Speaker, which I could have retained by making a fight, but I honestly believed that the Speaker had too much power under the old system for the good of the House and of our institutions.

FOR OPEN DISCUSSION.

"Among other things, I declared that I was in favor of throwing bills open to ample discussion and amendment and I am going to keep the faith, come what may. If I were to vote for the pending rule I could not look the House in the face.

"When I made that statement I was speaking particularly of tariff bills, but my statement is equally applicable to all great bills. Here is the situation: We have a rule reported on a bill on the greatest question presented in my twenty years in the House, beside which tariff bills sink into pitiable insignificance, a bill which if passed will change our foreign policy which we have maintained for 125 years, and only twenty hours for debate are permitted under this proposed rule and the right to amend it absolutely prohibited and no intervening motion permitted except to recommit.

"On such an important and far-reaching measure there should have been at least a week for debate, with the unlimited right of amendment.

"Surely there is nothing sacred about the Sims bill, and there is no reason for this mad rush. I will not be a party to running such a rule down the throats of members."

CONDEMN WILSON FOR HASTE ON TOLL REPEAL

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The Washington Post prints the following editorial under the heading, "Why Hasten Toll Action?":

The House of Representatives today will vote on a special rule under which is proposed to put the bill to repeal the toll exemption clause of the Panama Canal act to a final vote upon the expiration of fifteen hours of discussion.

This rule also will provide that no amendment shall be in order.

Members of that body will be required to vote on the proposition as submitted by the committee, and in no other way.

The Post believes it is questionable whether the country at large will approve of this hasty manner of dealing with this subject, which, looked upon from any point of view, is of vital importance to the people of the United States.

"The Post believes that President Wilson is big enough and broad enough in dealing with this question to await the sober judgment of the American people. We believe that the President and Congress will lose nothing by permitting the people to be heard.

"No government, republican in form, can retain power when it acts contrary to the will of the electorate. It becomes more strongly intrenched than ever when supported by the electorate after the settlement of a debatable problem. Here stands the majority of the people.

The proper settlement of this canal problem would seem to be one in which the voters themselves have a right to be heard, because their votes in the last election were dependent upon definite pledges which, today, in some quarters, are held to have not been binding.

Congress and the country are entitled to relief from hasty legislation which sometimes might easily become ill-advised and dangerous. President Wilson asks Congress to remain here and pass a tariff law and reform the currency. This was ungrudgingly done, although it involved great inconvenience and physical discomfort.

It may well be asked, and is being asked throughout the country, whether it is wise to repeal legislation, previously considered with great care in both houses of Congress, and thereby, as some public men assert, nullify a well-established domestic policy?

If the President thinks he has the majority of the House with him the more reason for showing no undue haste.

WILL MITCHELL PRACTICE WHAT HE ONCE PREACHED ON LOYALTY TO PARTY PLEDGE?

Last June nearly fifty Democrats in the Legislature betrayed their party platform by surrendering to the New Haven Railroad the trolleys in more than half the State. The leading Democrats denounced this betrayal of party honor. Among those who denounced it was Congressman John J. Mitchell of Marlboro, who telegraphed from Washington the following message:

"The Democratic Party has by its platform taken its position with the people against the merger. We were entrusted with power on the strength of our promises and we should make good our promises given in this matter if we are to continue in leadership in the State. It seems to me that every Democrat's best efforts, in and out of the Legislature, should be directed as far as possible to making the party platform effective."

Will Congressman Mitchell apply this principle to his own votes or will he dishonor the Democratic party, which stands pledged in its platform to free tolls for American ships? Will he yield to the railroad influences and to the power of patronage which seeks to repudiate the party's honor and the nation's honor in the eyes of the world?

'AMERICANS DIE IN MEXICO AS WILSON WAITS'

NEW YORK, March 27.—An attack upon two of President Wilson's pet policies—free canal tolls and "watchful waiting" in Mexico—was made by Major Cassius E. Gillette, late of the United States army, in an address at the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A. Major Gillette, who has lived for ten years in Mexico, was cheered when he said:

"Repeal of the free tolls law is Wilson's effort to keep Great Britain good-natured while the United States lets English lives and English blood be destroyed in Mexico along with American lives and American blood.

"His disgraceful 'watchful waiting' policy is nothing more than an underhand attempt to overturn the platform plank in his party's Baltimore platform. He wants to be 'unwillingly forced' to intervene as late as possible in his administration to become a popular war President, so that a second term will be 'forced upon him.'

"Catering to Great Britain, which seems the chief end in life of our President, our Secretary of State and our foreign ambassadors, is perfectly easy to understand. Mexican savages are killing Englishmen and wiping out English property. England wants to know why. For answer our President tries to hand over our dearest possession, the Panama Canal.

"The proposed repeal of the tolls exemption for American coastwise ships is a disgraceful surrender of an unassailable right and a and exhibition of the misdirected, cold, passionless ambition."

Oust Policeman Who Saw Ghost

WHITE AND CARR CLASH IN HOUSE ON G.O.P. 'TRICK'

Representatives White of Newton and Carr of Hopkinton clashed in the House today when the latter tried to resurrect the bill to define the two leading political parties in the State by the vote for Governor. Carr accused the G. O. P. of "gerrymandering" and "trickery." White retorted.

"The gentleman from Hopkinton is the most irresponsible, insincere and unfair member of the Progressive party."

Carr resented the attack, saying he was elected because the voters believed in his sincerity. White poured oil on the troubled waters by saying he regretted what he had said.

Reid Representative Hays:

"The present law is to prevent one man from creating a mushroom party."

Carr: "I resent that."

Hays: "Well, then, change mushroom to toadstool."

USED COMMON AS A THIEVES' CLEARINGHOUSE

James W. Pringle, the young "ax man," who turned State's evidence at East Cambridge yesterday in the trial of Hyman Shulman, an alleged "fence," testified today in continued examination that historic Boston Common was a sort of clearing ground for him to turn over stolen property to Shulman and receive cash in return.

An argument in the detention room between Pringle and David Kinkelstein, one of four Concord Reformatory prisoners brought down to testify, was another feature. Pringle hit the other a stiff "wallop" in the jaw before Court Officer Fred Peabody intervened.

Shulman has a little combination news store and tailor shop at No. 1056 Washington street, South End. He is charged in five counts with being accessory after the fact to breaking and entering by Pringle.

BAND OF 50 TO PLAY AS OPERA COMPANY SAILS

The Musicians' Union has joined in the movement to send off the Boston Opera Company to Paris in a royal manner. A band of fifty pieces will play on the Lapland when she is ready to sail from East Boston at noon Sunday.

The opera company is strongly unionized. The orchestra which Felix Weingartner, the famous conductor, declares is rapidly becoming one of the finest in the world, is composed entirely of union musicians.

The musical program which will be rendered by members of the opera company in honor of delegations from the various business organizations will include singing by Miss Myrna Sharlow and Vincenzo Taniongo, tenor, and the full chorus of 125. American patriotic airs will be sung to the accompaniment of the Musicians' Union volunteer band. The chorus yesterday rehearsed the "Star Spangled Banner" and "America."

Frederick S. Converse and other members of the board of directors will respond for the opera company to addresses from Frederick P. Fish, president of the City Club; Mayor Curley, ex-Mayor Fitzgerald and others. The organizations participating in the send off are the City Club, the Chamber of Commerce, the Real Estate Exchange and Pilgrim Publicity Association and the Press Club.

The exercises will be on board the ship, probably on deck. No tickets are required.

Tyler Grandchild Takes Plea to Wilson

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Miss Mattie R. Tyler, granddaughter of President Tyler, today visited the White House to plead with President Wilson to continue her as postmistress at Courtland, Va. Miss Tyler is seventy years old, and says she will be destitute if deprived of the place, which pays $650. Miss Tyler is to be displaced by B. A. Williams on the recommendation of Representative Holland of Virginia.

Help Wellesley College!

If All Your Home Burned Except the Front Porch; and if for Months You Had Been Trying to Save Money to Build a Henhouse, You Would Be About as Badly in Need of Help as Wellesley College Is Today

When Henry S. Durant, some forty years ago, conceived the plan of establishing a great woman's college on the shore of Lake Waban in Wellesley, and planned a college building five hundred feet long, to house the girls and to accommodate the college equipment, his friends said:

"Man, you'll never find girls to fill that huge building."

BUT HE DID! And today we wonder at the short-sightedness of those friends of Mr. Durant; for there are 1,200 girls at Wellesley. The original College Hall was far outgrown. Other dormitories, a chapel, a gymnasium and a library relieved the congestion in the main building. And Wellesley became a leader among the women's colleges of America—and of the world.

A month ago, new buildings were planned to house the growing college. President Pendleton had traveled from coast to coast, telling Wellesley's need of money for these structures. The students wanted a "Students' Building" and for years had maintained a noble, cheery fight for the money, raising it by small self-denials, by clever devices, by personal effort and planning.

Then College Hall burned! And Lewis Kennedy Morse, treasurer of the Wellesley trustees, is authority for the statement that SEVENTY-FIVE PER CENT. OF THE COLLEGE'S ACADEMIC EQUIPMENT WENT UP IN SMOKE.

Were it a man's college so stricken, the alumni could quickly raise the money for rebuilding; but a woman's college is hampered. For a woman's money is rarely her own to give to the college. It is her husband's, or her father's.

No college is self-supporting. All depend on endowments and gifts. In return they give the nation every year hundreds of trained, efficient men and women, ready for the highest tasks of citizenship.

Wellesley's record is peculiarly fine. She has inaugurated advanced methods of teaching and of research. Her professors rank among the leading thinkers of the day. Her graduates take their places as women of public spirit—women ready for their part in the work of the world.

And by the calamity which befell with the burning of College Hall, THE WHOLE FUTURE OF WELLESLEY IS PLACED IN JEOPARDY.

Even if funds are promptly forthcoming for rebuilding, it will be two years before the college's equipment will be restored to its original standard. It will be two years before the college wins back the ground lost in the fire.

IF FUNDS ARE NOT PROMPTLY FORTHCOMING, THE COLLEGE WILL LABOR UNDER A TERRIFIC HANDICAP FOR YEARS.

The alumnae alone cannot give the college what it needs, nor can the undergraduates. True, small gifts from the alumnae have been pouring in since the fire. True, every undergraduate is planning in some way to earn a little money for the college; and even now they are at work in Boston stores or are conducting their private enterprises to that end. True, recent graduates are sending back their books and lecture-notes for the use of the girls who lost everything in the fire. BUT ALL THIS IS ONLY A DROP IN THE BUCKET.

Boston cannot afford to see Wellesley's growth halted or hampered. Massachusetts cannot afford it. The Nation cannot afford it. And in Wellesley's sorrow there lies a supreme opportunity for service.

The friends of Wellesley should unite their support. There should be a great mass-meeting—a meeting where the college's hopes and plans could be discussed; and where the college's friends might proffer their utmost aid. There should be action, and AT ONCE, to restore Wellesley's strength for service.

All Wellesley needs is MONEY. And Boston and Massachusetts and the Nation must see that she gets it!

Hollis to Speak at Harvard Again

Senator Henry F. Hollis of New Hampshire, who in a recent speech at Harvard called the college "hidebound," has received an invitation to speak before the Harvard Union next year. "It was the first time I had had an opportunity to speak to Harvard since I graduated twenty-two years ago," declares Senator Hollis, "and I thought it would probably be my last chance. I am gratified at the invitation to speak again and shall accept it."

RUSH WORK ON NEW 'HALL' AT WELLESLEY

Wellesley College, opening April 7, will find a new administration building almost completed. The new building, which will temporarily house the offices destroyed in the College Hall fire, is simply a one-story wooden structure, and is to be completed by May 1. It will contain beside the administrative offices a large number of recitation rooms.

The preliminary work on the building was begun yesterday. It will stand on the smooth lawn opposite Houghton Memorial Chapel and in front of the Tau Zeta Epsilon sorority house. The site is level, reasonably high and dry, and will require no levelling, grading or blasting before building operations are commenced.

This temporary building will be used for perhaps two years, until funds have been raised and suitable permanent buildings replace College Hall.

Until the new building opens May 1, classes will be held in society houses and the art building and in the college library.

Wellesley girls and graduates are working desperately to enable the college work to go smoothly this Spring. Recent graduates have been called upon to furnish their old class books and lecture notes for the benefit of girls burned out in the fire.

There are no plans as yet to replace the geology, physics, psychology and zoology laboratories, which were destroyed by the burning of College Hall. The college still has three science laboratories intact—chemistry, which occupies a small building entirely by themselves; astronomy, which is housed in the Whitin observatory, and botany, which is in Stone Hall. A large sum must be raised for the replacing of the four lost science laboratories.

his bride was twenty-six and known in Washington for her beauty. Mr. Keith met her the year before while negotiating with her father for his theatre.

This was Mr. Keith's second marriage. A. Paul Keith is the son of his first marriage.

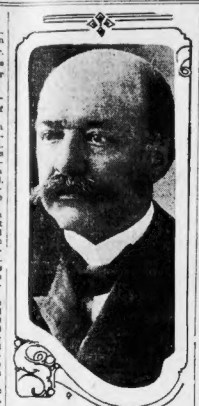
Last November, on the thirtieth anniversary of his founding of vaudeville, Mr. Keith made over to A. Paul Keith property and securities to the value of $5,000,000. This included the famous Keith house in Boston, which has done a great deal, through its richness and architectural beauty, to add lustre to the Keith name.

There was natural speculation about town today as to the amount of Mr. Keith's entire holdings and as to the disposal of the same. Men who are posted on vaudeville holdings and their values said that Mr. Keith could not have been worth less than $20,000,000 on account of the high earning power and the never-failing success of his enterprises.

His son and his young widow are Mr. Keith's only natural heirs, and if Mr. Keith meant the $5,000,000 made over to A. Paul Keith last Fall to stand as a settlement, the inference is left open that the widow will receive all or the bulk of the $25,000,000 remaining. This would make her one of the richest women in the world.

Old followers of the vaudeville game recalled today how B. F. Keith, charging a dime for admission to his continuous vaudeville in 1883, had chairs free for those who came early enough and how he finally decided, after much hesitation, to charge a nickel extra for chairs, and how, as a bolder venture, he put an extra charge of five cents more on chairs in the front rows.

It was from small ventures like these that Benjamin Franklin Keith, the man born with a genius for vaudeville, or "variety," as it was in the old days, pushed on and on, branching out, enlarging in every direction.



B. F. Keith.

With an almost uncanny ability to tell what the public wants, Mr. Keith kept on acquiring theatres, getting bigger and better acts, arranging his bills more and more skillfully, at the same time completing a model business organization, until his enterprises, though scattered over the country, worked together like one machine, entertaining the public and coining thousands and thousands of dollars for the master mind that had built it up and kept it going.

B. F. Keith was born at Hillsboro Bridge, N. H., the youngest of eight. His father was of Scottish descent, his mother of French extraction. At the age of seven the boy was put on a farm in Western Massachusetts. He received district school and village academy education, saw a circus and determined to be a showman some day.

It was not until he was eighteen years old that he became interested in the show business. His ventures were many and his fortunes fluctuating.

After his first opening in a little Washington street store, a short distance above the present theatre, Mr. Keith was associated in business with William Austin, later of Austin & Stone's Museum. Afterward he collaborated with George H. Bachelor.

The first departure from the museum business took place in the little store and was the result of the necessity for Mr. Keith's ingenuity to solve the problem of "attractions" rendered serious because of the difficulty of securing good exhibits for the museum platforms.

The first touch of variety added to the attractions was a dancing turn by two men, a "stunt" done on a stage scarcely larger in area than the side of a large packing case—and, in fact a dry goods case did form part of this stage.

Within three months an upstairs room was secured and here 123 chairs were placed and a small stage erected. Here the variety turns were first introduced. The theatre was daily crowded with men, women and children.

The museum did not long survive the introduction of vaudeville, and, securing a larger room downstairs in the rear of what was the first museum, it was possible to handle the rapidly-increasing business. It was in this room that a continuous performance was first given on July 6, 1885. These performances were remarkably successful from the start and soon became an important feature in theatricals all over America.

EATING RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLE

A Prominent Physician's Advice

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting, in many cases, is all criminal. Get back to normal. To do so you must have the proper quantity of nourishment. You need it for brain or physical work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an abnormal secretion of acid in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean ulcers if not cancer of the stomach. Do not take patented medicines or pepsin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a neutralizer of acid. Decidedly the best neutralizer is ordinary druggist's bisurated magnesia. You can get it at any drug store for a few cents. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate."

DINE LEADER OF 'CLEAN UP AND PAINT UP'

The Paint and Oil Club of New England, membership of which is composed of men engaged in the manufacture and sale of these products, at a dinner at a down town hotel acted as hosts to Colonel J. H. Callahan of Louisville, military aide to Governor McCreary of Kentucky and president of the National Paint, Oil and Varnish Association, and also entertained the complete membership of the Paint Trade Salesman's Club of New England. One hundred and sixty covers were laid.

After the dinner and the business of the Boston branch had been completed speeches were made by a few of the local officers. George A. Richardson, president of the Paint and Oil Club of New England, was toastmaster.

George C. Morton dwelt on the success thus far attained in the clean-up and paint-up committee, of which he is chairman.

A remarkable movement in the interests of sanitation, cleanliness and improvement in the standards of living has been launched by this clean-up and paint-up committee.

War on rotten bowels, reclamation of unhealthy and unsightly places, cleanliness outside and in as the greatest saving to the taxpayer and the best way of keeping the community healthy, is the idea of the general clean-up movement in May which has the indorsement of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Massachusetts Board of Trade and practically every civic and industrial welfare body throughout New England.

Keeping painted up and clean means the moving of offensive businesses outside the city limits, sanitation and disinfection. It insures garbage removal on a large scale, the planting of trees, shrubbery and flowers for homes and along the streets and alleys; it means warfare against flies and mosquitoes, orderly sidewalks, the keeping down of weeds, clean cellars and attics, and in addition a fair chance to diminish and possibly eradicate typhoid, tuberculosis, diphtheria and kindred disorders which thrive under conditions of filth and neglect.

Colonel Callahan made the principal speech. As president of the National Association of paint men he has travelled from the Pacific coast, visiting the larger cities en route conferring with commercial leaders and stimulating the clean-up movement. He expressed his approval of the quality of work being done here.

Hard to Live on Income of $18,000

NEW YORK, March 27.—Charles P. Buchanan, art connoisseur and retired tobacco merchant, finds it hard to live on $18,000 a year because of the cost of food in the high-priced restaurants which Buchanan likes to frequent. He is now going through bankruptcy.

DON'T SCOLD AN IRRITABLE CHILD

If little tongue is coated, surely give "California Syrup of Figs."

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Counterfeits are being sold here. Don't be fooled!

P. H. CALLAHAN of Louisville, head of the "paint and clean-up" campaign.

Farewell of Many Opera Stars Tonight

Nearly all of the artists who will take part in tonight's performances of "Faust" at the Boston Opera House will make their farewell appearances for the season. Mme. Weingartner, who will sing Marguerite, will sing the role for the only time this season. Mr. Marcoux sang his good-bye in the garb of Mephisto last year, and he will do so again.

Mr. Muratore, unquestionably one of the most interesting artists introduced from France in several seasons, will repeat his Faust. Mr. Weingartner likewise will make his final bow for the season. The performances of tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night, are the last of grand opera in Boston for more than nine months.

Dr. Oppenheimer Here to Lecture

Dr. Franz Oppenheimer, professor of economics in the University of Berlin, is now in Boston and will lecture next Sunday in Moreland Street Temple, Roxbury, at 3 p. m. He will address the Harvard students on Monday, March 30, at 2:30 p. m. in Phillips Brooks House.

Christian Science Bill Passed in N. Y.

ALBANY, March 27.—Christian Science healers will be permitted to practice their profession without the use of medicine or drugs if Governor Glynn signs a bill which passed the Assembly by a vote of 77 to 61. The bill has passed the Senate.

Wellesley Records Recovered from Fire

The Wellesley College records which were locked in a safe in College Hall when the building burned have been recovered. The safe was dragged from the ruins and opened. The records were found to be unhurt.

MORE THAN ONE PHAGAN SLAYER, SO BURNS HINTS

NEW YORK, March 27.—William J. Burns, engaged by friends of Leo M. Frank to investigate the murder of Mary Phagan at Atlanta, Ga., for which Frank is sentenced to be hanged, said there is no longer any mystery in the case.

"The evidence left by those responsible is sufficient to clear up this outrageous murder if properly used," said the famous detective.

This intimation that more than one persons had been engaged in the murder is entirely new. Mr. Burns had made a similar statement a few minutes before, but had immediately qualified it.

Mr. Burns expects to complete his work in New York late today and to go to Atlanta tonight.

"Who employed you?" he was asked.

"While in Atlanta two of Frank's friends—people who became friendly with him after this murder—visited me. I showed them that it would be unfair to Frank's chances if I took up the case, and convinced myself that I was running into something that would make it necessary for me to withdraw without completing my work.

"Then they told me that no mattter what my investigation revealed they waned me to go through with it and make a report. I took the case.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

At the meeting of the Cyclecar Club of New England held at the Hotel Oxford last evening many matters of importance to the organization were discussed at considerable length, and definite action taken. President E. P. Blake called attention to the fact that the interest in cyclecars was increasing daily and there was every indication of the membership being more than doubled within the next month. The constitution and by-laws were gone over for the third and last time and were finally accepted with few changes.

The committee in charge of the cyclecar run made a progressive report to the effect that the interest in the same was of such a nature as to warrant the assumption that something like a half a hundred vehicles will participate in this outing, which is to Portsmouth, N. H. and return. There was some question as to the advisability of making a slight alteration in the itinerary, but nothing definite was done, that being left entirely in the hands of the committee.

General Salesmanager F. W. Warner of the Oakland Motor Car Company is spending a few days in this city as the guest of local manager W. B. Fewell. Mr. Warner is making a trip to the New England branch managers and dealers, feeling the pulse of the trade in general. He expressed the belief yesterday that the business of 1914 would be most excellent, as there is every indication of a continuance of the present excellent trade conditions. So far as his own company is concerned he said that they were fully up to the record of previous years in actual sales and so well has business been that their plant at Pontiac is running on full time and is yet somewhat behind in deliveries.

William S. Carlton, manager of the Boston branch of the Republic Rubber Company, announces that his factory has brought out a new type of tire, intended for small cars of the Ford order, sizes 30x3½ and 32x3½. This tire is called the "W. M." from the markings on the tread.

MRS. BARTLETT TO WAGE HEART SUIT IN PUBLIC

The $100,000 suit for alleged breach of promise brought against Arthur Graves Lund of the Hotel Puritan, a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company by Mrs. Carolyn S. Bartlett must be heard in public. Lund's petition to have the case heard by an auditor, has been denied by Judge Jenny of the equity session of the Superior Court.

Mrs. Bartlett is a member of an old Massachusetts family and a grand-daughter of Sir Thomas Boynton of London. She is of commanding presence and striking appearance. Mrs. Bartlett alleges Lund promised to marry her during October, 1911.

When the suit was entered Mrs. Bartlett said:

"I don't know whether Mr. Lund is worth $100,000 or 100,000 cents. I don't want the money, but I do want justification before society and my friends. He has wrecked my life and I want him punished in every way that he can be punished."

Mrs. Bartlett says she met Mr. Lund at a reception given at the Touraine a dozen years ago.

Poet Drowns in Inspiring River

KANSAS CITY, Kan., March 27.—Andrew Jackson Sheridan, a writer of verse, was drowned today, his friends believe, in the Kansas River, a stream he often had memorialized in poems. He lived in a concrete house he himself constructed on the bank of the river.

$31,950 Now Pledged for Boys' Clubhouse

Leaders of the campaign to raise $100,000 for the new boys' club house in Roxbury, today reported that $31,950 was subscribed on the first day. The large clock on the Intercolonial building was set on the $31,950 when the teams started out on the second day.

Dress!

That word of such immediate concern to women. Successful, and madame is happy. "Not quite the thing," and her peace of mind is marred. Considering the importance of this essential, it is well to be sure.

Anyone may write about dress, but the modistes who originate the styles are alone able to assure correctness in every detail.

The fashion suggestions in Harper's Bazar are the ideas of world famous couturiers. The foremost, Lucile and Poiret, contribute exclusively their orginal sketches and very latest models, with careful descriptions of the new styles and the proper way to wear them.

Here is real fashion service. Here is real, authoritative advice with which you cannot be in error. No matter how much or how little you spend on clothes, you are sure of their smartness. You have the positive knowledge that you choose with the aid of Harper's Bazar, that gown, suit or hat will neither disappoint nor suffer by comparison.

Do not hesitate! Harper's Bazar, accepted as the final authority among fashion pictorials, still sells for 15 cents at your nearest newsdealer's. The Easter Fashion number goes on sale Saturday, March 28th. This number is the finest of any pictorial fashion magazine ever published for women. Don't miss it.

$6,7000,000 IS 1914 COST OF HUB SCHOOLS

About $6,700,000 will be spent on Boston schools, according to the estimates made public by the School Committee.

Of this sum $5,900,000 is contained in the School Committee's budget which was adopted unanimously, and provides for the current expenses of the committee, repairs and alterations for school buildings, pensions to teachers, and rents and hired accommodations. In addition to this budget the committee authorized the City Treasurer to issue and sell city of Boston negotiable bonds amounting to $500,000, for the administrative expenses of the Schoolhouses Department and for the construction and furnishing of additional buildings in four school districts. Further, the committee adopted an order appropriating $295,417 for additional accommodations, including the cost of land, construction of buildings and furnishings, in sixteen other school districts.

The increase in salaries of the instructors for 1913-14 over 1912-13 is $278,135.70, and the increase in salaries of instructors for the current year over that of 1913-14 is $232,-068.98.

Railroad Blocks Development Plan

Officials of the Boston & Albany Railroad refused to lease the seventy-foot strip of land along Boylston street to Herbert J. Conniington for the purpose of erecting a $700,000 business block. This decision was reached during a meeting in the Mayor's office between the Mayor, Howard M. Briscoe, vice-president of the road, and Mr. Conniington. By this refusal another project for the development of the Back Bay has fallen through. Mr. Briscoe said that they were willing to sell the strip of land, but they could not consider a lease.

$2,590,630 Paid to Mrs. Eddy's Trustees

CONCORD, N. H., March 27.—The sum of $2,590,632 has been turned over to the trustees appointed to administer the estate of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, under the terms of her will, by Josiah E. Fernald, who has been acting as administrator.

Mr. Fernald also made a final payment of $3,592 to the State on account of the inheritance and succession tax.

Captain Hastings, Pension Head, Dies

Captain Charles W. Hastings, eighty-five years, State Commissioner of State aid and pensions, is dead at his home in South Weymouth. Because of his position, Captain Hastings was well known to the Civil War veterans of the State.

FRANCES CLARK WILL CHRISTEN THE DEFIANCE

The honor of christening the America's Cup defence sloop Defiance has been given to Miss Frances Clark, daughter of E. Walter Clark, member of the syndicate building the boat. The launching party will leave Boston for Bath in a special car early in May.

Miss Clark is a skilled sailor, having been at the tiller of the Marblehead, seventeen - foot knockabout Skidamarink, owned by her father, in notable contests. She has done a great deal of yachting in the power cruiser Zipalong, which serves as tender for her father's racing schooner Irolita.

From Bath the Defiance will be towed to the mouth of the Kennebec and given preliminary tryouts to ascertain if she is in the best possible trim and balance. Should alterations be required, the sloop will return to the yard, otherwise she will proceed to Marblehead.

On May 30 a reception will be held aboard the Defiance in Marblehead Harbor, the boats being members of the Tri-City syndicate and Designer George Owen. A few days later the Defiance will be taken to Long Island for the early regattas.

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT TODAY IN THE MARKET

Eggs are low, fish is plentiful and green stuff is coming into the Boston market well. Eggs may drop to 30 cents for the month of April, but they will rise again as the weather grows warmer. Their present price is 32 cents for the fresh-every-day kind, with 31, 30, 27 and 26 cents for other grades.

The best print butter is 36 cents, with tub butter at 34, 32 and 30 cents. Turkey is 30 cents, chicken and fowl, 25 cents. Otherwise meat has not changed.

New maple sugar in. Best greens are 40 cents a peck, spinach 30 and 25 cents; dandelions, 20 cents. Rhubarb is down to 12 cents. California celery can be had for 15 cents; strawberries can be had for 20 a small box, and 25, 30 and 35 cents a large one.

Cod is 7 cents, haddock, 7 cents; jack shad, 15 cents; schrod, 15 cents each; flounders, 8 cents; finnan haddie, 19 cents; spawn and salmon 15 cents; steak cod, 12 cents; smelts and scallops, 25 cents, and halibut 18 cents.

LET SUMMERFIELDS FEATHER YOUR NEST

Store Open Saturday 10 P.M.

What is greater happiness in life than to have a beautiful home furnished after a manner of your own (long dreamed of) fancies and ideas? Your future happiness depends greatly upon the environments of your home it rests with you—the sweetness and joy of your home depend on what you make it.

Can you afford to select cheaply constructed furniture that in a short period will become shabby and which you would be compelled to replace, which is a double expense? Indeed not! The struggle for existence today is severe as it is.

To select "Quality Furniture" such as Summerfield's carry means everlasting joy and satisfaction. Quality furniture that possesses character, which is never tiring, and it doesn't cost any more and perhaps less than inferior grades.

Just a mere look, down the many glittering aisles at our two stores, will give you thoughts of a paradise of "Everything-to-furnish-every-home." Quality and Selection here are unexcelled.

Young Couples! Let us impress just one thing. You can buy this high quality furniture, and you don't necessarily have to pay for all of it at once. Don't try to pay for it all at once, because nine times out of ten, while you are waiting to accumulate enough, something unforeseen will happen to frustrate the attempt. Come to Summerfield's. Come to the House of Dignified Credit. Open a charge account and you can have a year or more to pay for your wants.

Recovered from Lung Trouble—Now Insured

Insurance companies will not accept any one affected with Lung Trouble. When you know a man who has been afflicted and who later has been insured, such action means that the policy-holder must be in a very good state of health. Cases have been reported when Lung Sufferers, after taking Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles, have successfully passed the medical test of insurance companies. Read this case—

237 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Gentlemen—About a year and a half ago I noticed that my health was rapidly failing. I was troubled with night sweats, a terrible cough and was very weak; having, in fact, absolutely no ambition whatever. At this time I consulted a physician, who told me my lungs were affected. Not satisfied, I went to another doctor, who, after examining me, said that I was in the first stages of Lung Trouble. At this point I started to take Eckman's Alterative. The night sweats stopped almost immediately, my cough became less and gradually disappeared. My weight is now 142 pounds and my physician has pronounced me perfectly sound—which, together with the fact that I have just been accepted by two different insurance companies for insurance, makes me sure of my entire recovery by Eckman's Alterative."

(Affidavit). W. E. GEE.

Eckman's Alterative as been proven by many years' test to be the best remedy for Severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

HUNT FOR MAN IN SUICIDE OF ALICE CROWE

Alice Gertrude Crowe, the Dorchester girl of twenty-one who killed herself with chloroform at the Hotel Watterson, in the West End, was seen in the company of a "strange man" during the last few days of her life, it developed today.

Her father, Charles E. Crowe, of No. 39 Longfellow street, Dorchester, today declared there were many features of her death he would like explained.

District Attorney Pelletier will today receive a report of the autopsy from Associate Medical Examiner Oscar T. Richardson, who was assisted by Frederick L. Green.

Mr. Crowe wants to question a man who saw his daughter a few nights ago. The man's name he will not divulge. If his questions are not properly answered Mr. Crowe will then ask the police to take a hand in the matter.

"I gave my daughter a good education and provided a good home for her. She attended a business college in Somerville and was a clever stenographer. She never stayed away from home over night until Wednesday night, and when she did not show up it was a surprise to us. I thought she would call us up at our home and tell us where she was. My wife is wrecked by this sorrowful misfortune.

"Alice left a letter to my wife, explaining certain matters which I do not care to discuss. The letter was very brief. I cannot discuss just what she said to my wife. I made that promise."

Finally, Mr. Crowe admitted one phrase in the letter was:

"WORRIES ARE OVER."

"My worries are over, mother. Forgive me."

"It was strange my daughter should go away with herself. She was a good and home-loving girl.

"Some time ago I saw Alice talking to a strange man. When she saw me she left him. She went home. He went in another direction. It is this man I want to see. I will know him all right.

"It is said that my daughter went to the hotel alone. That may be so, and again it may not. I intend to conduct a thorough investigation."

An official of the business college in Somerville spoke highly of the dead girl.

"Miss Crowe was a model student," he said. "She was a bright girl and well thought of by her classmates. She left here about a year ago to accept a position with the firm of Arthur W. Blackman, No. 259 Congress street, Boston."

At the latter place it was learned Miss Crowe worked there for six months as stenographer. While there a young man often called to see her.

BOUGHT SUPPER TICKET.

The suicide theory received a blow from word that the girl had bought a ticket to a church supper to be held last night at the Upham's Corner Memorial Church. She had planned to go to this supper with the rest of the family.

There was just six cents in the girl's pocketbook when she was found today.

BABSON PUTS POSERS TO U. S. ON RAILROADS

Roger W. Babson, the statistician, who lives in Wellesley Hills, but who is now in Panama, has written from there to the New York Sun four "pertinent questions" upon the railroad situation. Mr. Babson writes:

To the Editor of the Sun:

Sir—How can the government at Washington object to granting higher rates to our American railroads when it charges five cents a mile on its only own road, the Panama Railroad?

How can the government at Washington have the face to ask American railroads to purchase steel cars until it buys at least one such car for its own road which it operates on this isthmus?

How can our government at Washington complain about the service on American lines when it operates only four trains a day on its own line, which, moreover, has a monopoly of all business?

How can our government at Washington consistently object to monopoly when itself operates and insists upon its most exclusive railroad monopoly in America?

Let our government first show how it can operate its own road, where it has an absolute monopoly, on a two-cent fare or else furnish steel cars and a good service before dictating to others.

R. W. BABSON.

Kaiser Cuts Dinner Schedules in Half

BERLIN, March 27.—The Kaiser issued two prandial edicts today. The first decree is that no official dinner shall be longer than forty-five minutes from the time the guests sit down until they arise. This is one-half the present duration of such affairs. The second decree prescribes that women shall no longer remain in the drawing room alone, where the German custom allow cigarettes to accompany the coffee.

FINAL BRIEF TO STOP THAW EXTRADITION

CONCORD, N. H., March 27.—Harry K. Thaw's last brief against extradition was filed in the Federal Court here today. Jerome has already filed his final brief, and Judge Aldrich is expected to set a date for his final hearing; and after that hearing to give his decision on Thaw's petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

The Thaw attorneys urge that the "purpose of the State of New York to return Thaw to Matteawan makes this a misuse of the extradition laws to accomplish their ends."

The Thaw attorneys also contend: "If extradition is refused and if New York appeals, Thaw is entitled to bail as a matter of right. We believe our position is a just one, and unanswerable."

Drink Schlitz in Brown Bottles

Read what two eminent scientists have to say about light and its effect on beer in light glass bottles.

"In recent years the observation has been made that the rays of sunlight effect a chemical change in beer. For this reason the use of beer bottles blown from colorless glass is diminishing, bottles blown from colored glass being chosen; the amber colored bottles, which, when held towards the light, show the color of light beer, are particularly to be recommended."

RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

It's Me For Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative. They act gently on the "lazy liver" of those who are constipated, sluggish or bilious.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—with headache—torpid liver—and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant relief in one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Co., Columbus, Ohio. All druggists.

BOOSTERS BAND TO AID CLIMBERS INTO SOCIETY

NEW YORK, March 27.—An association to push the socially ambitious—for a financial consideration—is contending for clients among the climbers in New York.

The errand of a fashionably-gowned young woman to a well-known hotel the other day was of more than passing interest. It marked the establishment of the "social introducer."

This woman told the woman she called upon she and sisters were taking up the business in earnest. Her association, she said, had done the same thing in London for years and had made a steady income of from $15,000 to $25,000 a year.

The member of the new association was asked whether she thought there were wealthy Americans who would pay for introductions in New York. She replied she was sure of it. She named four of the most prominent hostesses in New York, and assured the other woman it would be possible to arrange it so that these women would give dinners in honor of the persons who were on the ladder.

"What would such a thing cost a client?" asked the other woman.

"Well, if Mrs. So-and-So gave a dinner for twenty-five, at which were all her best-known relatives, and the client was a well-known millionaire, the charges would be about $300.00," the introducer replied.

The Woman Thou Gavest Me

HALL CAINE'S GREATEST STORY

THE NARRATIVE OF MARY O'NEILL
FIFTH PART
I BECOME A MOTHER

(Copyright, 1912, by Hearst's Magazine, Copyright, 1913, by Hearst's Magazine. Copyright in Great Britain. Copyright, 1914, by A. R. Coppleston Cobean.)

I looked out to the sea, but there seemed to be no sea, only a hissing splash of green spray where the steamer's forward light fell on the water which her bow was pitching up, and beyond that nothing but a threatening and thundering void.

I did not weep, but I felt as other women had felt before me, as other women have felt since, as women must always feel after they have sinned against the world and the world's law, that there was nothing before me but the blackness of night.

"Out of the depths I cry unto thee, O Lord. Lord, hear my cry."

But all at once a blessed thought came to me. We were travelling eastward, and dark as the night was now in a few hours the day would dawn, the sun would shine in our faces and the sky would smile over our heads!

It would be like that with me. Martin would come back. I was only going to meet him. It was dark midnight with me now, but I was sailing into the sunrise!

Perhaps I was like a child, but I think that comforted me.

At all events I went down to the little triangular cabin with a cheerful heart, forgetting that I was a runaway, a homeless wanderer, an outcast, with nothing before me but the wilderness of London, where I should be friendless and alone.

The fire had gone out in this time, the oil lamp was swinging to the motion of the ship, the timbers were creaking and the Liverpool women were asleep.

Seventy-Ninth Chapter.

At 8 o'clock next morning I was in the train leaving Liverpool for London.

I had selected a second-class compartment labelled "For Ladies," and my only traveling companion was a tall, fair woman, in a sealskin coat and a very large black hat. She had filled the carriage with the warm odor of eau-de-Cologne and the racks on both sides with her luggage, which chiefly consisted of ladies' hat boxes of various shapes and sizes.

Hardly had we started when I realized that she was a very loquacious and expansive person.

Was I going all the way? Yes? Did I live in Liverpool? No? In London, perhaps? No? Probably I lived in the country? Yes? That was charming, the country being so lovely.

I saw in a moment that if my flight was to be carried out to any purpose I should have to conceal my identity; but how to do so I did not know, my conscience never before having had to accuse me of deliberate untruth.

Accident helped me. My companion asked me what was my husband's profession, and being now accustomed to think of Martin as my real husband I answered that he was a commander.

"You mean the commander of a ship?"

"Yes."

"Ah, yes, you've been staying in Liverpool to see him off on a voyage. How sweet! Just what I should do myself if my husband were a sailor."

Then followed a further battery of perplexing questions.

Had my husband gone on a long voyage? Yes? Where to? The South. Did I mean India, Australia, New Zealand? Yes, and still farther.

"Ah, I see," she said again. "He's probably the captain of a tramp steamer, and will go from port to port as long as he can find a cargo."

Martin understanding what my companion meant by this, I half agreed to it, and then followed a volley of more personal inquiries.

I was young to be married, wasn't I? Probably I hadn't been married very long. And not long enough to settled myself in a home perhaps I was going up to London to wait for my husband? Yes? How wise—town being so much more cheerful than the country.

"Any friends there?"

"No."

"None whatever?"

"None whatever."

"But won't you be lonely by yourself in London?"

A little lonely, perhaps."

Being satisfied that she has found out everything about me, my traveling companion (probably from the mere love of talking) told me something about herself.

WAS A MILLINER

She was a fashionable milliner and had a shop in the West End of London. Occasionally she made personal visits to the provinces to take orders from the leading shopkeepers, but during the season she found it more profitable to remain in town, where her connection was large among people who could pay the highest prices.

By this time we had reached Crewe, and as there was some delay in getting into the station my traveling companion put her head out of the window to inquire the cause. She was told that a night train from Scotland was in front of us, and we should have to be coupled on to it before we could proceed to London.

This threw her into the wildest state of excitement.

"I see what it is," she said. "The shooting season is over, and the society people are coming down from the moors. I know lots and lots of them. They are my best customers—the gentlemen, at all events."

"The gentlemen?"

"Why, yes," she said with a little laugh.

After some shunting our Liverpool carriages were coupled to the Scotch train and run into the station, where a number of gentlemen in knickerbockers and cloth caps were strolling about the platform.

My companion seemed to know them all and gave them their names, generally their Christian names, and often their familiar ones.

Suddenly I had a shock. A tall man, whose figure I recognized, pounced close by our carriage, and I had only time to conceal myself from observation behind the curtain of the window.

"Heilea!" cried my companion. "There's Teddy Eastcliff. He married Camilla, the Russian dancer. They first met in my shop. I may tell you."

I was feeling hot and cold by turns, but a thick veil must have hidden my confusion, for after we had driven my companion, becoming still more confidential, talked for a long time about her aristocratic customers, and I caught a glimpse of a life that was on the verge of a kind of fashionable Bohemia.

More than once I recognized my husband's friends and gave the names of her clients, and trembling lest my husband himself should become a subject of discussion, I made the excuse of a headache to close my eyes and be silent.

My companion thereupon slept, very soundly and rather audibly, from Rugby to Willesden, where, awakening with a start while the tickets were being collected, she first powdered her face by her fashion-glass and then interested herself afresh in my affairs.

"Did you say, my dear, that you have no friends in London?"

I repeated that I had none.

"Then you will go to an hotel, I suppose?"

I answered that I should have to look for something less expensive.

"In that case," she said, "I think I know something that will suit you exactly."

To the Woman Who Realizes She Needs Help

You are nervous. You have "crying spells." You are dejected. You don't sleep well. You have backache. You have lost ambition for your work. You are beginning to feel old and look old.

These symptoms, more than likely, are produced by some weakness, derangement or irregularity peculiar to the feminine organism.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription
(In Tablet or Liquid Form)

will aid you in regaining youthful health and strength—just as it has been doing for over forty years for women who have been in the same condition of health you now find yourself. It soothes and invigorates. It upbuilds and uplifts.

Your medicine dealer will supply you in tablet or liquid form, or send 50 one-cent stamps for trial box. Address Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

DANDRUFF SURELY DESTROYS THE HAIR

Makes It Dull, Brittle, Lifeless, and Causes It to Fall Out.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement.

Health and Strength Regained By Splendid Tonic Influence

The Season's Difference Affects All Manner of Life and the Human Body Needs Help Most of All

So many people use S. S. S. every Spring that it is really a message of health to those who wonder why they feel so utterly worn out when the trees begin to bud. Throughout the Southern States S. S. S. has been for forty years a trusted tonic for the early days of Spring. Of purely vegetable origin it combines elements which kindly influence the overworked blood vessels or overstrained nerve tissues. Its action is medicinal just as meat or milk is nutritional.

OUR WINTER INACTIVITY.

During the confined months of the winter season there are many of us who are less active. The liver is sluggish, the skin is dormant, the kidneys are overworked, the lungs are not called upon to breathe with sufficient depth and energy to satisfy the demands of the tissues for their needed amount of oxygen. And thus the body needs help, must have it. Experience comes to our relief, and what better guide could we select than the example of the many annually know exactly what to do—use S. S. S.

RETAINS ITS INDIVIDUALITY.

The wonderful tonic influence of this splendid blood purifier is traced to its ability to retain its individuality. It is acceptable to the weakest stomach, and yet it is not changed or converted, or exereted until it has exercised its medicinal dominance throughout the blood circulation.

This is important. Some drugs have this same effect, but they remain in the system, a fruitful source of irritation and danger. S. S. S. does not remain in the system, for after having served the purpose as a medicinal action, it is excreted with the waste products, and this enunctory process goes on every second of time.

BLOOD IMPURITIES BY NAME.

We are prone to think too much of names. When the muscles ache and the sciatic nerve hurts, and there are general pains the word Rheumatism leads one to forget that it a the blood as much as the nerve that are responsible for these pains. And S. S. S. proves this by its tonic influence in the blood. When the mind and body are jaded and utterly cast down with malarial infection, it is the blood that contains this poisonous influence. Here again S. S. S. asserts its tonic influence. And if from a sluggish blood stream, there are skin eruptions, blood risings, indolent abscesses and other evidences of accumulated body wastes, the medicinal action of S. S. S. gives ocular evidence of its medicinal influence.

A TRUTHFUL MEDICINE.

Not one particle of anything other than the native roots and simple preservatives are used in the preparation of S. S. S. It has survived many years of the most searching tests, and never in its forty and more years of usefulness has it ever been found otherwise than a purely beneficial medicine, helpful to the young, invigorating to those advanced in years, and containing just the amount of gentle exhilaration so much required by most women.

S. S. S. is strongly recommended in almost every community in America, and is sold in most drug, department and general stores.

But by all means avoid substitutes. Do not permit anyone to palm off something they claim to be "just as good." Ask for S. S. S., insist upon getting it and you will thus avoid grievous disappointment. S. S. S. is prepared only in the Laboratory of the Swift Specific Co., 408 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. And for a special book on Catarrh or Rheumatism or skin diseases or blood troubles, write to our Medical Dept., who will be glad to give you special and personal directions in the use of S. S. S.

Tomorrow Ends the Great Distribution of the American's Big Panama Book

So come in and get them—one or a dozen—as many as you want—and you'll probably want several of them to give to your friends when you see what a beautiful big book it is—a $4 volume for 98 cents—think of that! But act quickly! There are only a few books left, and a whole lot of people want them, so present your Panama Certificate QUICK.

Any Liggett's Store in Boston or neighboring cities will supply you

GET IT TODAY

This wonderful interoceanic waterway becomes a mighty factor in peace and war; it will mark great changes in trade and commerce; it will revolutionize the world's shipping; it will change alliances among the nations of the earth. Think of the educational advantages offered by this book with the whole story of this gigantic undertaking! Nobody who sees, thinks or reads, can afford to miss this opportunity.

More than 600 rare pictures, including beautiful water color studies in full page plates of artistic colorings

This is a greatly reduced illustration of the $4 volume.

As the size of your thumb compares with your hand, so this illustration compares with the size of the big book—9x12 inches.

YOU NEED IT

"Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose" is a great big book teeming with USEFUL information concerning the country and the people, with the COMPLETE story of the great canal. Within a short time, when the world's shipping will be entirely changed by this new "short cut," where is the man, woman or child that will not be benefited by having ALL the KNOWLEDGE to be known on this subject?

Readers of the Boston American

Just clip and present ONE Panama Certificate and the expense amount of 98 cents for the large volume, or 48 cents for the smaller size, which covers the items of the cost of packing, express from the factory, checking, clerk hire and other necessary expenses. Mail Orders filled as explained in the certificate.

NOT ANOTHER CHANCE

So get busy now—you'll want this book when you see that everybody else has got a copy of it—but be QUICK, for—

Tomorrow Is "Good-By" Day

READERS SUBMIT NEW LISTS OF THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS WOMEN

Who are the world's six most distinguished women?

Can you tell?

The AMERICAN offers $100 in cash prizes for the best answers to this question.

The object is to assist the Panama International Exposition Board which has decided to take the six most distinguished women of the world to San Francisco in 1915 as a feature of the exposition.

These feminine leaders of the world's affairs are to be selected by a special committee of the woman's board.

Send in your answers clearly written. Try to select a representative of New England, as special importance will be attached to this. You can send in any number of lists. The women must be living. The six women receiving the highest number of votes will be the formal list with which yours will be compared.

The first prize is $35; second, $25; third, $15; fourth, $10, and fifth, sixth and seventh, $5 each. In the event of a tie the sum will be equally divided.

Send your lists addressed to Panama-Pacific Contest Department, Boston AMERICAN.

Gentle Spring! 10 Below in Bismarck

CHICAGO, March 27.—With Spring officially under way for nearly a week, the following below zero temperatures were reported today: Prince Albert, Sask., 23; Williston, N. D., 16; Bismarck, N. D., 10; Devil's Lake, N. D., 8; Miles City, Mont., 2. In Abelind, Tex., the mercury stood 54 degrees above zero. In Miami, Fla.; Fort Smith, Ark., and San Antonio, Tex., it was 78.

QUICK AND SURE STOMACH DOCTOR

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends Indigestion, Gas, Sourness in five minutes.

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

COURT ENDS PACIFIC PHONE MONOPOLY

PORTLAND, Ore., March 27.—A decree by which competition in long distance telephone business in the Pacific Coast States is restored and an illegal combination in violation of the Sherman law is dissolved was entered in the United States Court today in the government suit against the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company, the Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph Company, known as the Bell companies.

The decree enlarges and intensifies the independent telephone situation and surrounds it with safeguards provided by law.

PLEA FOR THE SERVANT GIRL BY MRS. PELL

Mrs. Mary Hutton Pell made a plea for servants and domestics before the Bureau of Social Requirements at its meeting yesterday, according to New York despatches. She said:

"The recreation hours of domestic servants are absolutely unguarded. Most of them are country girls from closely guarded homes. We take them into our beautiful establishments where there is no provision for their comfort. The most elaborate house, with twenty servants, has only a small servants' hall. There is no privacy.

"And when the servant girl is engaged she is as much engaged as the daughter of the house. She goes to the dance hall or the moving picture theatre—then to the night court.

"Employers have found that they can't neglect the recreational hours of their employes, but I never heard of a single society to look after the recreation or education of domestic servants."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat, when clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe sick headaches, rheumatic twinges, sore muscles, acid stomach, sleepless nights and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel a pain or dull ache in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless, inexpensive, makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who say it overcomes kidney trouble while it [illegible] troubles.

SUFFRAGISTS PLAN CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION

Plans for the education of voters on the merits on equal suffrage are being made by the Massachusetts Women's Suffrage Association, following the defeat of the Massachusetts House of Representatives on Wednesday by a vote of 188 to 43 in the suffrage amendment to the State Constitution.

Although the amendment must pass the House once more to become ready for submission to the people, equal suffrage leaders were so sure of a victory that they held a big celebration [illegible]

HOLD CELEBRATION TONIGHT.

At the big Suffrage banquet tonight in Ford Hall the exercises will also be in the nature of a celebration.

The floor of the hall will be filled with tables reserved for delegates from Brookline, Brockton, Melrose, Lawrence, Jamaica Plain and many other localities from all over the State. There will also be tables reserved for delegations from the Federation of Women's Clubs and various labor organizations.

Miss Coral of Colorado will be one of the principal speakers, and will tell of the result of Suffrage in ten States.

Walter Prichard Eaton will be toastmaster and speakers will be Judge Sherman L. Whipple, Miss Alice Carpenter, Senator Eugene N. Foss, Senator Laurence W. Hobbs and former Councilor Guy A. Ham.

Mrs. Alice Parker Leaver will be hostess of the banquet table.

PLAN TO TEACH VOTERS.

The educational campaign will open Sunday afternoon at the Moslem Yacht clubhouse in South Boston. There Mrs. Theresa Crowley, head of the legislative committee of the suffragists, and Miss Margaret Foley will speak. Mrs Crowley, as attorney, is legal representative of the suffragists, and a great deal of credit for the visitors to date is accorded her.

Monday evening there will be a meeting of the suffragists in the municipal building at South Boston, and the speakers there will be Representative Washburn of Worcester, Senator McCarthy of Ashland, Representative Webster of Boxford, former Representative Nason of South Boston, Miss Foley and Miss Eileen Sullivan, chairman of the South Boston Suffrage ward committee.

Alice Stone Blackwell head of the Bay State suffragists, declared: "It has been a long, hard fight, but victory is in sight. Now we must all work hard to secure at the polls the passing of the suffrage amendment through the next Legislature and getting a majority for it on popular vote.

Mrs. Maud Wood Park of the legislative committee of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, said: "I am delighted at the action of the Massachusetts Legislature, but I am not surprised [illegible]

CHAPTER I.

STRIPPED of his possessions and exiled from the country that he loved by the czar he hated old Boris Romanoff came to America crushed and broken man.

He was his son, Ivan, who now took the family helm and set out to build back their fortunes in a new land. The younger brother, Alec, had never taken life very seriously. The mother had died when he was very young and the father and Ivan had pampered and petted him.

So Ivan was not a little surprised when Alec came to him, one evening during the busiest time of the day. Irma's brother, Roalf, also worked in the factory—a shrewd, keen witted, but furtive, youth who looked as if he would be [illegible]

It was Ivan who lifted the half fainting girl and led her gently home. At the door his aged father met them. At his arrival he might have taken a child to comfort it, and told the tragic news. Boris Romanoff never left his bed after the shock of the news.

CHAPTER III.

If to him the tragedy was deep, to little Irma it was overwhelming.

In the bright sunrise of her love the thought of death had never come to her. She had dreamed the world was made for happiness alone; she had quaffed deep of the cup of happiness; and the terrible punishment had come.

Kneeling at her mother's feet, weeping, hysterical, hopeless, she made, brokenly, her confession. The man she had loved—the man who was dead—had wronged her.

From the gentle, pitying, heartbroken [illegible] it was from her father that the storm of fear burst upon the child whose very innocence had made her guilty.

Peter Nelken thundered his damnations with quivering frame and uplifted hand. He was clutching the girl from the shelter of her mother's arms when Romanoff, who had heard the commotion, rushed into the room. He caught the mighty hand that would have struck the girl.

The wrath of Nelken turned upon Ivan.

"Ha! You, is it?" he cried. "You of the Romanoffs. I will tell your proud father of his dastard son. Here is the legacy your dead Alec left to ME—this ruined girl. I will go to your father!"

"You [illegible] Ivan. My father is a dying man. You will deal with me alone. If my brother did any wrong to you or yours, I will atone for it."

"Atone for it!" sneered Nelken. "Well, you marry her, then. My daughter's honor must be protected."

Ivan looked from the angry man to the crushed, weeping girl. In the flash of time [illegible] came many visions to him. He saw the proud state of his ancestral home before the exile. He heard his father's ringing stories of the honor of the Romanoffs in ancient days.

He saw the face of his wild, careless, innocent, foolish little brother who would so gladly have made reparation for this sin if he had lived.

And then the face of a woman—of Margaret Wright—the face of the woman he loved—she was her employer's daughter, and, though he had never spoken his heart, he knew her heart was his.

Only for a moment raged the battle in his breast. He turned calmly to Nelken.

"If Irma will have me for her husband," he said gently, "I will make all arrangements for the wedding."

CHAPTER IV.

Five years later Ivan Romanoff was a rich man. He had fashioned inventions that gave him the capital to go into business for himself. And ever since the day of his marriage to Irma he had determined to go into business for himself. He could no longer bear the meetings with Margaret Wright in her father's office. He knew that she thought him a deceitful craven to leave that he had wounded her as no woman can bear to be wounded cruelly. [illegible] would be a dangerous competitor, he thought. And he was not mistaken.

Roalf Nelken, Irma's brother, left with Ivan and went to work in his office.

The torture of Ivan's life was the continued cordiality that existed between him and his former employer. Not that he would have broken with Mr. Wright willingly, but to be invited to his home, to see him daily there, to keep the helpless silence in the face of the woman [illegible] was crushing to him.

To Irma Ivan was a father, not a husband. His kindness, his studied skill in fulfilling her every wish was her torture. For Irma had come to love the man to whom she was a wife in name only.

They were the best of companions. They consulted together about the household. About his work. They went everywhere together; but he was her protector, her guard and stay—nothing more.

Roalf lived with them. Roalf had become a figure in the gay set Irma's who had been so shield in many a scrape at last pleaded with Ivan not to give him money, but Ivan was generous. He did not refuse until the young man confronted him one day and asked for a thousand dollars.

"I've got to have it—lost it at cards last night—debt of honor, you know—[illegible] must pay you, old man."

"No, I don't mind," said Ivan, "but you can't have it. The people who call gambling debts 'debts of honor,' my boy, are the people who would still be fighting duels if the law would let them. Debts of honor begin at home. You got to work and make a man of yourself with the good head you've got. I don't mind lending you some money, but you have been borrowing from Irma's allowance. No, she didn't tell me, I can see by her economies. I have doubled her allowance, and you are not to ask her for any more money, because I have told her not to give it to you."

"By the way, [illegible] have a big thing in view that I want you to figure [illegible] contract I don't want Wright to get it if I can help it. He and I will be practically the only bidders."

"And you want let me have a dirty little thousand dollars?" sulked Roalf.

"Well, by G——, I think it's a shame that——"

"Roalf!" thundered Ivan, rising. "You have heard my decision on that matter. You had better not talk with me now."

Roalf swung out of the room. He passed Irma, entering.

"The biggest thing I ever tackled, Irma," said Ivan cheerily, as she came to his side. "The [illegible] for [illegible]

"You are a flatterer, little lady—and that is a beautiful dress."

"What was Roalf so excited about?"

"He wanted money! I refused."

"Ivan, I don't think Roalf is doing right. I am almost afraid of him sometimes."

"Oh, he's just [illegible]

Lawrence Assails Hampden Road Bill

William B Lawrence of Medford denounced the bill to extend the time allowed the Hampden Railroad in which to construct its lines to Chicopee and Holyoke before the legislative Committee on Railroads. He charged that the road was originally built simply as a speculation, to be sold later, although the law says railroads built shall be operated. "That road was built to sell for speculation," said Mr Lawrence.

"The old Board of Railroad Commissioners put that over and within a short time after the Hampden Railroad got its charter the man who was chairman resigned from the commission and was appointed judge of the Superior Court.

"If there is no map, how can we tell how the railroad runs or where the railroad ran, and why should the commission put this boil over on the poor Boston & Maine Railroad? Let them settle it among themselves, if they wish to, but this committee should not legislate it."

PRINCESS VILMA LWOFF-PARLAGHY, whose "million dollar suite" at the Plaza, in New York, was invaded and her guest of honor arrested.

Aroostook Seed Only Safe Potato

WASHINGTON, March [illegible]. — Because of the prevalence of powdery [illegible] disease in potatoes in portions of Northern Maine, the Department of Agriculture today warned growers to accept only seed potatoes from Aroostook County, Me., delivered at original bags bearing the certificate of the Maine Department of Agriculture to the effect that the potatoes are free from the disease.

ARREST GUEST OF PRINCESS AS SWINDLER

Boston society folk who were hosts to the Princess Vilma Lwoff-Parlaghy on her last visit to this city were interested in news from New York today that detectives had entered her lavish fourteen-room suite in the Hotel Plaza there and had arrested one of her guests of honor, Count Edward Gallaurer.

According to the story, the beautiful Princess, who has a string of castles in Austria and Russia, has $1,000,000 a year pin money and who paints portraits for fun, was entertaining the Count and numerous other guests in her "million dollar suite."

Princess and Count were seated [illegible] a days when the sleuths arrived. In vain did the talented titled woman plead—the Count was torn away before her eyes. He was locked up at the police station and today was arraigned in a Brooklyn court on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences.

Princess Vilma is vividly recalled by Bostonians. When here she was the feted guest of Mrs. Jack Gardner and a dozen other society leaders. At numerous elaborate entertainments at the Hotel Lenox. She said she had come to Boston to meet some of "its culture."

"I found the Boston people—Boston geese, or Bostonese, do you call them?—delightful," she said afterward.

The Princess had her troubles. A private Pullman coach which cost her $160 for the trip to New York, she blamed the New Haven Railroad for letting "lots of people into the private car." Finally, however, the Princess solved the problem by holding a levee in the coach, and later she showed reporters the cards of former Governor Draper and others as having been among her guests.

Held as Poor Box Thief After Shots

LAWRENCE, March 27.—After a chase, during which several shots were fired by Inspector Mulhare, Louis Mangini was arrested charged with robbing the poor box at St. Laurence's Church. Mulhare was stationed in the church watching for the thief and says he saw Mangini slip in a sticky corset steel and abstract coins.

T WHARF FISH MEN MOVING TO NEW PIER

Today is moving day at T wharf and at the fish houses on adjacent streets. Already "To Let" signs are up along Atlantic avenue, and a steady procession of trucks are engaged in hauling office furniture to the new South Boston fish wharf.

Seven vessels brought nearly half a million pounds of fish to T wharf today, but the dealers only bought enough to fill present orders and the price fell away to the lowest figure that has been known in the latest season on T wharf for many years. All but a very little of the fish offered remained unsold when the market closed and the schooners sailed off to Gloucester to dispose of their catches to the curing houses there.

These seven vessels were the last that will bring their fish to T wharf. After today they will go to the south Boston pier, which will be ready to receive them at sunrise Monday morning.

Easter Styles

Are Not for a Chosen Few

THERE is not a reader of the Boston American, no matter what his or her circumstances may be, who cannot be properly dressed if disposed to be a bit discriminating.

Authentic styles, fresh from the world's most famous creators of fashion, are within the reach of everybody.

Style is no longer monopolized by a chosen few.

The merchant princes of the United States secure the very best models just as soon as they are produced in Paris or London or New York.

And these models are reproduced, but readers of the American do not have to pay for the services of high-priced designers.

Every correct tailored suit and coat—every fancy gown and wrap—every hat that has been conceived—is yours if you want it.

The display advertising columns of the Boston American will tell you about prices and where you must go to get just what you want.

They constitute an accurate directory of Boston's progressive stores, and should be followed from day to day by everybody who desires to know what the new Spring styles are and where to get them.

If you miss a day you may overlook the very thing that will please you most. So don't allow yourself to be disappointed.

FRUIT GROWERS OF CALIFORNIA THANK HEARST

LOS ANGELES, March 27.—Recognition of the efforts of the Los Angeles Examiner in conceiving and helping to carry out successfully the plan "Orange Day" is found in the following communication sent to William Randolph Hearst by G. Harold Powell, general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, Los Angeles.

In behalf of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange I desire to express the appreciation of the citizens of citrus fruit growers for the interest shown by you through the Los Angeles Examiner and your other papers in giving such valuable publicity to the California orange on March 1, a day that was designated as "California Orange Day." This publicity attracted the attention of the country to the magnificent crop of high quality which is being harvested and shipped this year throughout the United States and Canada.

There is no product produced in California that is worthier of publicity than the citrus fruit crop, because of the large financial returns it brings to the State and because of the interest which people not only of this State but all over the country, take in the growing and handling of oranges and lemons. Your co-operation in making known to the people of the country the condition and excellent quality of this crop has been helpful, not only to the true industry but distinctly beneficial to the State of California. I am authorized by the board of directors of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange to express its appreciation to you.

West End Hotel Cook Found Dead

When employes at the Hotel Bowdoin in the West End went to call Margaret Barrios, the cook, to the kitchen early today, they found her dead in bed in her room. One was sent from an open jet. The police believe death was accidental. Associate Medical Examiner Richardson was called. The woman had been employed at the hotel only two days. In her room was a postcard with the address "No. 11 Stephen street, Lynn."

W. E. Corey's Son to Be Homestead Head

PITTSBURGH, March 27.—The retirement of the last of A. C. Dinkey, president of the Carnegie Steel Company, to New York at this time, it was said here, is to attend a meeting to select a successor to Axtell J. Byers, president of the Homestead Works. Alfred A. Corey, son of William E. Corey, formerly president of the United States Steel Corporation, it is reported, is to be appointed.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Miss Eleanor Wilson, daughter of the president, who is to be married soon to William C. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, is in New York buying trousseau. She went on a tour of shops yesterday with Mrs. John Sergeant, of Philadelphia, a cousin.

LATE NEWS BY CABLE

Steal Priceless Paintings From Spanish Church.

MADRID, March 27.—Three priceless paintings by El Greco of the Spanish school of art have been stolen by thieves who invaded the churches and museums at Toledo. The government was notified of the robbery today and members of King Alfonso's secret service staff were immediately sent to Toledo to hunt for the criminals.

El Greco's most famous work was the "Burial of the Count of Orgaz," which had hung for several hundred years in the church of Santo Tome at Toledo.

Suicide on Liner at Sea.

PLYMOUTH, England, March 27.—A dramatic suicide at sea was reported by the commander of the steamer Oceanic when the vessel arrived here from New York. Thomas Farnsworth became suddenly insane at the height of a terrific storm and plunged into the ocean. Efforts to rescue him failed.

Blow at Duelling by Parliament.

BERLIN, March 27.—By a unanimous vote of the Imperial Parliament a bill providing that where a duel or a challenge to a duel has been provoked by dishonorable conduct the offender shall be liable to imprisonment in a penitentiary instead of confinement in a fortress passed its second and third readings yesterday.

Socialists Win Dresden Seat.

DRESDEN, March 27.—The Socialists were victorious in a bye-election in the Borna district, displacing General von Liebert, Imperialist, who was unseated in the Reichstag owing to irregularities. The Socialists thus regain their previous total of 111 seats.

BUCHAREST, March 27.—Mr. Simon Blum of Chicago died here yesterday.

Burglar Scare in Federal Street

Crossed wires set off the burglar alarm in the store at No. 160 Federal street early today and gave the police a "scare." The building was searched, and when no trace of burglars was found the cause of the trouble was located.

PAQUIN MODELS SAY BOSTON MEN ARE "ENGLISH"

By VIOLA ROGERS

NEW YORK, March 27.

"Oh, such a lazy ... We soon found that they ... four of your ... quite dull ... Paris Fourth, who are all of ... that is because we ... Bostonian men — I had ... thought of that.

Mlle. Helene Dupre one of ... English and ... manner, who have visited Boston Philadelphia, Chicago and New York with Madame Paquin, during an exhibition of the Paris French fashions, made the foregoing comment today.

The models found Boston men essentially English.

"American men are such fine, big, manly beings," interposed Mlle. Lodge. "We adore them because of their shoulders and clothes. They have been so nice to us."

"You see, while the French gentleman is always courteous to us he does not propose matrimony, as your men do. He is the woman's man. The American understands that we want to be amused and he tries to amuse us.

He knows us beautiful dinners, he takes us everywhere in limousines, to the best theatres, restaurants and cabarets and he orders the most expensive food. But—he never remembers; he never thinks to ask—do we want the most expensive food.

"I don't want to criticise him—he has his own American 'charm,' but the American man seems not to understand the temperamental quality in woman."

Mlle. Boulet here broke in. "I like them all, but the Chicago men are the best. They are so warm hearted—so human—they do not pretend."

"Yes, yes, you are right, Marguerite—the Chicago men are the best men," added the "Little Danny" girl. "Three lovely ones proposed to have me marry them and live in Chicago."

In Boston Mlle. Dupre met with four proposals. "All very charming, cultivated men," she said, "but Boston is so English and the men are so like their city. They were the least American of men and it was the least American of cities I have seen," she added.

"The Philadelphia men seem so fine, oh, so very rich—but they are quiet as well behaved."

$775,000 NEAR FOR THE SIEGEL DEPOSITORS

Depositors in the Henry Siegel & Company bank may expect a cash dividend of $325,000 within the next ten days, according to New York dispatches today.

There is also prospect now of a renewal of the offer of a cash payment by relatives of Siegel and Vorel of the $450,000 originally offered through the depositors' realization corporation, it was learned today. In the event of this offer being renewed the cash dividend will approximate thirty-five per cent. The $325,000 millions would give them only seventeen per cent.

Conferences at the Boston stores are expected in the New York stores, it was said at District Attorney Whitman's office in New York today. Within the past year more than $200,000 was obtained from Boston banks, it is alleged, on statements which are said to have been made up from a private ledger in the same manner as were those on which money was obtained from the National Bank of Commerce in New York.

The material exists in Boston, it was said, for finding indictments here, but the prospect is that this will be held in abeyance until the result of the trial of the indictments in New York.

Runaways Decline to Fight in Mexico

"Join the Mexican army or go back home," was the choice given a couple of runaway boys today by Policeman Curran at the City Hall avenue station. The boys were Thomas Fortis, fifteen, and Albert Belanger, sixteen, both of New Bedford. "Gee, Mexico is too far from home," they told the policeman, and then decided they would return to New Bedford. They said they had gotten tired of working in the mills and had run away.

GERHAROT AND BURNS CLASH IN MAT BATTLE

Joe Stecher, one of the greatest wrestlers ever developed in this city, and Frank Gerhardt, the German wonder, will settle a long standing dispute as to which is the better man, when they clash on the mat in Mechanics building tonight.

Both Stecher and Gerhardt have met several times in time-limit matches, and each occasion honors have been pretty even, but as tonight's encounter is a finish battle the result will settle beyond all doubt as to their standing.

If there ever were two men more equal in ability, in skill, in power or speed and gameness brought together than Stecher and Gerhardt, it is hard to recall them.

That the men stand at the top of their weight division among the wrestlers of the world and that the winner will be more nearly the world's light heavyweight champion than any other man since America has grew that class, has but added to the already great interest in the merits of the men, the general belief being that the least slip by either will result in defeat.

Both wrestlers have trained hard and each appears to be confident of the outcome. With the toe hold out that Burns' chances are liked by many, but the remarkable German has made a great hit here by his clever work and many will be inclined to pin their faith on him to land first honors.

At the request of his many patrons, Promoter Tuohey will start Burns and Gerhardt at 9:15, and will have in reserve a crack pair of men in case of any unforseen happening

68 ENTER N. E. AMATEUR BOXING CHAMPIONSHIPS

Sixty-eight amateur boxers will compete in the eight classes of the New England A. A. U. boxing championships, which will be held in Mechanics building tonight.

BOSTON BRAVES OPEN SERIES OF FOUR GAMES AGAINST THE ATLANTA TEAM TODAY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

RED SOX IN FINE TRIM AND ANXIOUS TO GET GOING IN PENNANT RACE

BRAVES OPEN 4-GAME SERIES WITH ATLANTAS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 27.—The Braves and their camp followers numbering thirty-five persons are here to start a four-game campaign against Bill Smith's Atlanta team, champions of the Southern League.

The first two games will be played here and the last two at Macon on Monday and Tuesday.

Stallings brought his regular team and nine pitchers and two catchers. The Boston manager hopes to profit greatly by the practice with the strong hitters. He is particularly anxious to have his men face the pick of Bill Smith's pitchers.

Fred Mitchell has supplied an alibi for the weak hitting of the Braves at Macon. He says the center field fence and the trees back of the fence interfere with the batting eyes of the Boston sluggers, and hence they are unable to slug.

That being the case the boys ought to show something in the way of stick work here as there is a fine green color of the exact color approved by all ball players.

Ponce de Leon Park, where the Atlanta team plays its games, being the place where the somewhat celebrated Gordon Kelly made his baseball debut last year, the writer had to stand a lot of good natured joshing from the players as well as from many Atlanta friends.

LONG WORKOUT FOR BRAVES.

Several of the players said it is impossible for a batsman to hit the ball at Ponce de Leon Park, but of course this is utter nonsense in view of what Gordon Kelly accomplished.

The Braves took a long work out at Macon yesterday, and in the afternoon saw a husk league game between the St. Louis Browns (second team) and Macon.

It was fierce, so much so that earnest fan as Jim O'Leary is, he left to quit and go back to the hotel before the game was half over. This is going some.

Among the St. Louis bunch was Dutch Reid, formerly of the Everett Hish. He played first base and showed up well.

WEEDING OUT PROCESS ON.

The release of Bradley Hogg to the Mobile Club is only a fore-runner of weeding out process that will take place next week. Stallings has quite a number of men to dispose of.

None will be placed where they can be recalled and others will be let go altogether.

The official announcement of the appointment of Johnnie Evers as captain of the Braves was discounted in these dispatches two weeks ago. He is the only logical man for the place.

It is hoped however, that he will curb his well-known inclination to bulldoze the umpires. The Braves cannot afford to run the risk of his being suspended.

EVERS IS MADE CAPTAIN.

As was expected, Johnny Evers has been made captain of the Braves, succeeding Bill Sweeney, now with the Cubs.

Evers is a clever coach of young ball players, and with his wide knowledge of baseball, gained as a member of the famous old Cub machine, is really in a position to give veteran players pointers on inside baseball.

Live Wires From Training Camps

WASHINGTON, THE PHILLIES EN-tertained some busy legs in losing on the ice to the Washington team of the American League by a score of 7 to 6. Coach Wheat, of the Peddie Academy, Coach Jack Coffey, of Fordham, and Coach Lee Wheat proved too much for Doctor Von Post and his wife of the Phillies' coaching staff.

RED SOX CAST LONGING EYES TO FIRST GAME

By JACK CONWAY.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 27.—The last Friday of the stay of the Red Sox in these waters dawned this morning upon a full and happy family of Carrigan cohorts.

Among the first arrivals at the breakfast table was Tris Speaker, the well-known outfielder who kressed into this burg yesterday afternoon on the wings of the Rock Island special.

With Joe Wood already batting .362 in the East league and all the Lannins going equally well against right-handed and left-handed chefs, it may be stated that the squad is in prime form.

Bill Carrigan gave the skies the once over early this morning. Even after pulling all this stuff he was undecided as to whether to call out the reserves.

The hills were still deep in mist and the sun was having a hard time getting its fifty-fifty break with the storm clouds. Majestic Park, as figured out by the oldest inhabitants, was about four inches under water after the downpour of yesterday.

But Carrigan planned to hold practice if the sun came out sufficiently strong to keep dry the upper garments of the perspiring candidates.

PAINT DUE OVER FEED SCOUTS.

Howard Camnitz and John Doe, of the Federal League, are still hanging around, although the case of the Pittsburgh contracts have been postponed until Saturday.

Judge Henderson of the local court, which will decide the status of the Pirate players, admitted yesterday that he had never seen a ball game in his life. This fact may mean, another postponement until his honor gets a little inside information on the regular staff.

Everything still contends that he will not have to produce his contracts in court, claiming as he does, that the affidavits of his players are sufficient proof that a contract exists.

If this view finds favor in the eye of the court, the temporary injunction issued against Camnitz is likely to be made permanent without the Pittsburgh clubs revealing any secrets.

ALL EYES ON SPEAKER.

Speaker says that he is ready to jump into his spangles this afternoon and show the astonished natives how much good it did him to take a whirl around the globe.

Everybody in Hot Springs was anxious to pipe the great Texan in his working clothes, and there promises to be a large throng of local "fans" on hand.

Certainly, if anyone ever looked fit, Speaker is that one. He has been closing up some business deals in Texas, where he has invested some of the bonus money that he is alleged to have received for hitching up with the Red Sox.

Society is all heated up over his coming, and "Dutch" Leonard and Harold Janvrin are authorities for the announcement that a fence has to be held in his honor before the squad hikes out of town.

Seattle Made $2,500 by Selling Kelly to Sox

YOUNG PITCHER SAYS HE WAS BOUGHT FOR $500 AND LET GO FOR $3,000.

By ED KELLY

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 27.—[illegible] I am a New England boy but did not attract attention as a baseball pitcher until I went to the Pacific Coast [illegible]. I was born in Pawtucket twenty-three years ago and played semi-professional baseball throughout Rhode Island until I was twenty years old. Then I won the majority of my games, but none of the minor league scouts made an effort to secure my signature to a contract.

ED KELLY.

When I was twenty years old, my people decided to go to Seattle, [illegible] and I naturally went along with them. I played a little semi-professional ball in the West and then signed to perform for the Walla-Walla club of the Western Tri-State League. I did well at Walla-Walla and I was sold to Seattle.

Seattle purchased me in June for $500, and I understand that I was sold to the Red Sox a month later for $3,000. I won most of my games with Seattle, although I was not supported by a star aggregation.

I am anxious to play for Boston as I will be among friends. I have many relatives and acquaintances throughout New England. They, too, President Lannin and Bill Carrigan of the Red Sox are great men to work for, and both players are only human and like to work under men who are well versed in their business and who are interested in the welfare of those in their employ.

Notes from Red Sox Camp

By JACK CONWAY

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 27.—The weather here is just right for a baseball team which will be obliged to perform in Boston during April. The temperature usually ranges between 60 and 70 degrees, but there is an occasional cold, rainy day and as a result the Red Sox will be used to playing under adverse conditions.

WHEN ball clubs do their Spring training in the extreme South they suffer a reaction when they return North. The players become accustomed to pastiming in warm weather and often "blow up" when called upon to play in the North when a cold east wind is blowing.

PRESIDENT LANNIN is so well pleased with the training conditions here that he has leased Majestic Park for five more years. The grounds are in excellent condition and are better cared for than numerous minor league ball parks.

DOMINICK MULRENAN, the Woburn boy who hopes to win a berth with the Red Sox pitching staff, is one of the best hitters among the hurlers. The "Kid" is a natural ball player and takes a long, easy swing at the ball.

EVERETT SCOTT has a brother who is also a ball player. He is a pitcher and holds down a job in the Michigan League. Scott's brother was once purchased by the Detroit Tigers, but refused to report, as he was unable to reach an agreement with President Navin as to what salary he should receive.

JOE WOOD believes that his brother Pete will make good with the Lowell club of the New England League this year. Pete has plenty of "smoke," but experiences trouble in locating the plate.

JOE was also very wild when he was with the Red Sox, but could not get the ball over the plate.

THEY finally decided to give Joe another chance, and he proved that he possessed plenty of class and was purchased by the Red Sox. Pitcher Wood's history is too well known to every baseball lover to bear repetition here.

RAY COLLINS delights in going on fishing excursions. In this way he looks like Hugo Wagner, the mighty Pittsburgh shortstop.

SOME of the recruits are trying to "clown" out in what league they will be seen when Carrigan starts to wield the big ax. Most of the young men returned along for several weeks more, as Carrigan does not believe in developing ball players for the Federal League.

SEVERAL of the Red Sox rookies have "stage fright," and a little experience in a Class A minor league would not do them any harm.

Notes from the Braves' Camp

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

MACON, Ga., March 27. — Every ball player whose name is Holmes is called "Duckey" Holmes for the same reason that all O'Neills are called "Tip" O'Neill, all Youngs are called "Cy" Young, and all Indian ball players are called "Chief." There was a "Duckey" Holmes here with the Newark team the other day. His home is around this neighborhood, somewhere.

HOLMES was drafted by Brooklyn several years ago from one of the bush leagues of the South. When he arrived he said to the management: "You must have got the wrong man, because there is a pitcher down my way that is about ten times better pitcher than I am. His name is Tucker."

Thus it was that the Brooklyn Club was tipped off to one of the greatest left-handed pitchers in the business.

DUCHESNIL, the French-Canadian pitcher with the Braves, has a whisper, so they say. "Bud" Sharpe, who picked him up last season when he was pitching for the Pittsfield Club, says that during one of the games he saw Duchesnil pitch, one of the infielders booted the ball. He rushed up, bending a player, grabbed the ball out of his hand, returned to the box and struck the next three batters out.

THE Macon team is in a league classification somewhere around the foot of the classification ladder. But evidently the baseball editor of the Macon Telegraph doesn't realize it, for the other day, telling of the fact that several of the Macon players had been "canned," he wound up his note with these words: "Back to the bushes for these fellows."

LITTLE Joe Connolly has recovered from his "Charleshorse," but Stallings insists that he take things slowly. Joe is a great little fellow to have on the team—always a willing, and a hard worker, very popular with his mates and a skillful ball player.

BIG Charlie Schmidt is playing first base in style. The team therefore does not miss "Hap" Myers, who played the bag last season. Schmidt is hitting the ball hard and is proving an earnest worker.

"HANK" GOWDY is settling down in the style and promises to be one of the most valued members of the team. There is no doubt he will be retained all year. He is catching good ball and, as for hitting, no member of the staff can touch him.

EVERS is not hitting the ball at all well. But he says that when he hits hoorly in Spring training he usually makes up for it when the championship season starts. If this is true Johnnie ought to bat at about a .467 clip next May.

CHARLIE DEAL ("Chuck," his team mates call him), is making hard plays look easy in and around the third corner. From the way things are going the Braves will have one of the very best infields in either big leagues this season.

BIG Bill James, the pitcher, has received a letter from our old friend, "Hap" Myers, who is with the Buffalo "Feds," training at Columbia, S. C. "Hap" writes that he is with a fine bunch of fellows.

HANK GOWDY and Duchesnil are the champion players of the gang. Hank is the temporary champion, having defeated the French-Canadian two out of three games at fifty points continuous pool.

L. BURDETTE, a schoolmate friend of Dick Lewis at Exeter Academy several Years ago, called on the Boston player at the hotel here. They talked over old times for several hours.

DOUBLES TODAY AT LONGWOOD TENNIS COURT

A great gathering is looked for at the Longwood tennis courts today when play in the doubles is started following the sensational play in the opening round in which Harry C. Johnson eliminated both T. R. Pell of New York, former indoor champion, and R. N. Williams, 2d, the internationalist and member of the triumphant American Davis cup team.

The score of the Pell match was 6—4, 6—1; and in the Williams contest 6—2, 3—[illegible].

The other winners were J. E. Jones, who defeated H. H. Learned, G. F. Touchard and N. W. Niles.

The drawings for today's doubles follow:

FIRST ROUND.

R. M. Little and J. E. Pell vs. Bois and Irving Wright.

SECOND ROUND.

George Wrenn and W. C. Gardner, Jr. vs. N. W. Niles and A. S. Dabney, G. F. Touchard and W. M. Washburn vs. W. A. Learned, and [illegible] Inman H. Williams and Harry [illegible] vs. [illegible] Pell and Bois, H. H. Learned and Watson vs. C. C. Shafer and G. [illegible].

By WEBSTER DENISON.

"You're on the job early," Crane replied to Jack's "Good morning."

"Yes, I had a little extra matter to look into this morning."

The junior partner did not divulge the nature of his new project. He had decided to get the governor's O. K. first. It would be embarrassing if he proceeded with his plan and Scott vetoed it, and he knew the tactful Crane would indorse the scheme when the time came.

A CHEERY GREETING

"Good morning, Mr. Scott. My, but you're a grind! If I had all the dough you've got you wouldn't see me around till noon."

This was from Dollie, the stenographer assigned to Jack. She was a merry sort, flaunting good looks and modish clothes of the garish kind. Chewing gum was not an occasional pastime with Dolly; it was a perennial duty. She stopped beside his desk long enough to adjust her hat for the last time before taking it off in the dressing room.

"That's one girl you've reformed," Crane chuckled as she skipped out of the room. "She was the last to show up for work until you came. Now she's the first."

There wasn't time to answer this bit of badinage if Jack had cared to, for Dollie pranced out to her chair beside his desk.

She crossed her legs and began reading a letter. She had wondered, had this blithe young creature, why the junior partner didn't show some interest in her. Most everyone else did. Perhaps she had been too ready to accept it. She would have to practice a little indifference herself. She read through the letter twice and then glanced up over it. Jack was in a brown study, entirely oblivious to her presence. "What's the use?" she thought. "He's the stupidest man in New York! But some day he'll own Scott & Son. It's up to little me!"

Still perusing the letter, she broke into a laugh. She felt that he was looking at her.

"Gee, this is funny," she confided as she glanced up and caught his eye. "You know that one-stand actor I was telling you about who lived at our boarding house? Well, he went out West with a tank show and it's gone dry. He writes yours truly from Warsaw, Ind., and wants me to send him fare to Chicago. That's what you get for being a good fellow. Well, I guess he'll walk. Know what he did to me once? Stole an appointment at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and then stood me up for the car fare."

The junior partner smiled in spite of himself, but vouchsafed no solution of the one-night actor's plight.

"He's a pretty good fellow, at that," Dollie rambled on. "You ought to meet him at let him show you the town after the lights are out some night. He's an expert, believe me. I'm telling you about him because I want to ask your advice. Do you think I should send him any change?"

"Candidly, if he's a friend of yours and you think you can afford it," Jack condescended.

"Oh, he got the price, all right, but I wanted to get some clothes; new stockings, especially. These don't match my dress. They're a shade too light. See!"

She crossed an unnecessary display of silk hosiery and the junior partner glanced uneasily about the room.

"But I guess I'll make these do and send him the money if you say so, Mr. Scott."

"I recommend that you use your best judgment, Miss Williams," the young man suggested. The dignity of Scott & Son was being a trifle ruffled. "If you don't mind, further, I'd like to give you a letter."

"Oh, very well," she agreed. But sh- resented his frigidity with a pretty pout.

A PRETTY POUT

Dollie's pout was worth looking at. It enhanced her babyish charms when from the standpoint of mere feminine pulchritude were indisputable. She had pretty blond hair and wore it in undulating waves well down over her ears. Her eyes were brown and of the amorous sort, tempered by dark brown lips of a bewitching curve and the whole contour of her face was rounded and perfect, in point appeal by a pug nose. Her figure tended to roundness, too, and soft curves. Altogether she was what men call a "cuddly" girl and what women term a "doll baby."

But this innocuous exterior was not in keeping with Dollie's impressions and practices in life. Like Catherine Wiggins she had gained wisdom in the ways of the world, but Catherine's was a gamut of negative knowledge and Dollie's was an active one. All she courted above a good time was a better one.

She tried to interest this rich young employer of hers in herself. She cherished dreams of one falling in love with her and giving her the smart clothes and envied luxuries of the elite. If she could have read the workings of young Scott's mind at this moment she would have been the hopelessness of trying her wiles on him. He looked at her now and then as he read the letter, but he was offered off his letter, and he saw only the antithesis of another; her brazenness emphasized the modesty of the other; her worldliness contrasted poorly with the others simplicity.

FILLED BY MEMORY

As the passage of Gertrude came again, Dollie passed out of his head entirely. He turned to some of his routine work—the checking over of vouchers. It was too early to approach his step-father, though he would have welcomed any excuse for doing so. For now the memory of this little figure in blue serge who only yesterday had clung to his arm so trustingly in the auto, dominated even his prodigious plan for office economy.

The Road to a Man's Heart

Via His Tummy or His Head?

By NELL BRINKLEY.

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

My chum tucked her slim, little brown-stockinged feet under each knee, cuddled each ankle in a hand, and rocked back and forth, her brown head catching the sun at each rock and shining like anything.

"Which do you think," quoth she, "is the royal road to his heart—a man's heart—does it go via his tummy or his head? Will a pie—golden and crumbly, and oozy around its edges where the candied juice slipped through, and sweet with a 'bouquet' that a thousand romantic roses never gave—melt his eye and his heart quicker when baked by a girl who bothers her level little head about naught else? OR—will his eye and his heart kindle sooner to a girl whose offerings are of her head, who sits with one elbow on her knee and her chin cupped in her hand and her eyes glistening, understanding everything he holds forth on, from the varied translations of the Rubaiyat through Materlinck and old French romance, five-lyrics of the Orientals, beloved O. Henry, music, manners, Gouverneur Morris, and the tariff, who can dance like an angel, sing like a young lark, go anywhere with him that it takes a HEAD to go—but CANNOT bake a pie? Which do you think?"

"We-e-ll," said I, rocking also, "this isn't a very brand-new clever answer, but it depends on the man. And ALL men love pie. Did you ever watch them? EVERY KIND of a man will slip his eye hastily over the dessert, frown and smile and say, 'PIE!' But there are chaps whose hearts turn to a lump of butter in a warm oven at sight of a pie—who would rather have one pie and the smooth round hand that made it than all the understanding and comradeship there be. And then there are chaps who would 'prudder' a girl ride knee-to-knee with them—listening, glistening and understanding—than make him a lemon pie any time! And then there's the pig of a chap who wants both pie and understanding—WORK of head and hand. He's reaching for star-woman and earth-woman—he's dabbling in star-dust and brown earth. But Love's a queer person, you know, be he feminine or masculine. He likes roses and plum-pudding—he likes moonlight and dotes on gypsies and regular meal-times—he loves a song of the road and yearns for a chair in a chimney corner—he adores poetry and has a fondness for a kitchen account book—he sings about moonlight and yellow roses and holds forth in the broad daylight under the midday sun about how delectable a thing is a portion of brown fig-pudding drowned in sauce—he makes a song on the delicate arch of his lady's eye-brow and the glance of her soft, brown eye—and then he enthuses about her economical streak which can lengthen out a yellow back so astonishingly—so you see he's a most satisfactory chap. Hand or head work. It's hard to tell which holds the strongest lure for him, Pie vs. Comradeship! YOU already—can bake a pie that they have in Paradise for dessert—and I have digged deep in things written (it's my business, you know)—so you polish up on your accomplishments and I'll learn to make a pie and we'll have a few reserves when we go out trapping for Love!"—NELL BRINKLEY.

"The Perils of Pauline" as Seen by Alan Dale

By ALAN DALE.

THERE'S one thing "movies" do, that the regular drummer doesn't seem able to get at. The pictures can make you feel so nervous about ocean travel, and can show you so vividly what you may possibly be up against, if things go wrong, that you have a strong desire to cancel your passage and wait until you can go aeroplanically.

I realized that yesterday when I saw the flamboyant story called "The Perils of Pauline." There was a fire on a liner in the hold, where you always throw away everything you want. Red were the flames, dense was the smoke, unrepressed was the agitation. Nothing but the sinuous limbs of a sort of Lady Richardson-egma dancer, who stood up and gyrated in the draperies for the passengers, quelled the tumult. It was all very photo-graphic and grisly, and it made me wonder—not why girls leave home—but why they go to Turrup.

Incidentally I may say that I fancy—I say I fancy—that the fire was occasioned by a naughty lady who would smoke a cigarette on deck—on an Ocean Liner," and really Pauline made a good showing as a story writer. I hope she'll get a steady job on Cosmo. When I left her she was going to tea the world to write more stories, not, I hope, of calamity on the ocean wave.

The picture of the mummy was capital. Mummies always appeal to me. I could spend a week at the British Museum among that gorgeous collection. In "The Perils of Pauline" is the mummy that causes the death of Pauline's much old guardian. He has heart disease. (Heart disease on the stage, in pictures, and in novels, never misleads anybody; it means death.) As soon as you see a man or a woman put his or her hand to his or her side, you realize that the worst will happen. It is just as sure as the tuberculous cough it.

The poor old chap in "The Perils of Pauline" buys a mummy in Cairo for his art collection—a very careless thing to do. Even without heart disease—or art disease—a mummy is rather a dangerous thing to have in the house. This one was a terror. You saw it splendidly shown on its sarcophagus, and gradually—slowly —dramatically and cheerlessly it came to life.

It was a she-mummy—a mummy-ess, I suppose—and it looked very imposing. Doesn't a mummy, with its tight swathings and its impeded arteries, remind you of the feminine garbs of today? All one, yesterday. The mummy, on its sarcophagus, strongly suggested the latest style from Paris.

It watched it come to life. It was rather uncanny and creepy. The old man, with his face in his hands, stupified by the contents of a vial that had dropped from the mummy case, sat alone with it. The mummy-ess came mildly from her prison and spoke. On the screen was flashed the query: "What did the mummy say?" I wonder. She kept her secret. She spoke, but in pictures language is at the mercy of the screens. You saw her lips moving; she seemed to be saying at least a quart, but what? What? What did the mummy say?

The death of the poor old heart-disease-er followed. It was a great shock to his cardiac nerves. He called for help and Pauline, and subsequently died gently in his bedstead, just having time to bequeath half his estate to his son, Harry, the remainder to his adopted daughter, Pauline, to be held in trust until her marriage by—the villain. The villain was dark and sinister, and splendidly dressed, after the manner of polite stage villains. It was quite a relief to me that he couldn't speak. I'm tired of talking villains. But he plotted with another evil one, and the screens let us know that.

It is quite wonderful how the "movies" can visualize any story. Now "The Perils of Pauline" which is full of plot and incident and melodrama, "gets over" capitally in movie' form. Nothing misses fire, and you can follow it all with the greatest facility. You don't even need an imagination—though I hope you have one, as it's a handy thing to have around the house. The three "parts" of "The Perils of Pauline" run for about an hour, but time passed very quickly, and the pictures certainly did give you quite an appetite for the perils of the poor girl—perils yet to come. The cast seemed to be an interesting one, and Pauline herself was awfully nice. So many silent girls are nice. So many exiles queer the show when they talk. Pauline didn't. Nor was there an undue amount of villain. The nefarious ones kept well in the background, and their "vile machinations" were not much in evidence. That was as it should be.

"The Perils of Pauline" certainly affords big scope for incident. Never was a girl in a more precarious plight. Nev-ver!

THARB is a very interesting peece in this paper, sed Ma, wich said that the things a person eats has a tendency to influence their thoughts. I neevr knew that beefoar.

No, sed Pa, & you reely can't say that you knew it now, jest because you read it in a paper. What food does the paper say you shud eat.

It dident say what you shud or shuddent eat, sed Ma, but it spoke of the way different things you ate wud effeck yure brain.

For instants, it says that fish is grate for bilding up the brain cells. I have often herd that beefoar & Thare must surely be sumthing to it, sed Ma.

I never believed any such trash as that, sed Pa. Why, if the eeting of fish maiks folks brainy, how about all them simple fisharmen all along the coasts, that doant git much else but fish to eat the year around. They don't know who is the president, sum of them, sed Pa, & as far as being brite & quick thinking, they will lat sum littled skeeming stour keeper trim them out of thare eye teeth & keep them in his debt the yeer around.

Well, it may or may not be true about the eeting of fish maiking one brainy, sed Ma, but sum of this story sounds vary reesonabel. It says, for instants, that a man who east a lot of beef & doesnt git much exercise is libel to git too strong for his own good, & wen he feels so strong fizically he is neglecting his mind & thinking about nothing excep how easy he can whip sum smaller man, & the artikel says, sed Ma, that if one eats a lot of pork one is libel to git to be sumthing of a hog in one's thoughts. That doesnt sound foolish to you does it? sed Ma.

It doesnt sound very wise, sed Pa. One of the mount generous & unselfish men that I know is a grate hand for pork & I guess he wud set it thres times a day if he cud git it. It certingly nevver made him act like a hog & I know it nevver cud. & on the other hand, sed Pa, look at Jameson, that cums here sum times with his wife. He has got a temper like a tiger & is always reddy to snarl at the first chanst. & all the meet he eats is lamb, gentel, tender spring lamb, Pa sed. & I know a lady that eats chicken all the time, sed Pa, & she is the worst old ben in our set. I dount talk shy stock in that artikel. No two men or two wimmen is alike, & what is one man's meat is another man's poison, as the old saying goes.

The artikel says that grate care shud be took in telling yure children what to eat, sed Ma, it says that if you want to maik a lawyer out of yure boy you shud have him eat a lot of bacon, because the constant eating of bacon maiks the mind logikal & sharpying Ma sed.

I dount see anything very logikal about bacon, sed Pa, & besides I don't think I want to maik a lawyer out of Bobbie.

It says if you want to maik him a preacher you shud feed him a lot of vegetabels, sed Ma, beekaus vegetables has a tendency to maik a boy eloquent. It doesnt say what he shud eat if you want him to becum a doctor, & that is what I shud like to see Bobbie be.

If you want him to be a actor, sed Pa, you shud train him to git along with littel or no food at all.

The Longing for Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THE universal longing for love is responsible for more misfit matrimonial mates than anything else in this love-lit old world.

A man loves Love. A woman is the embodiment of that sentiment to him, and loving Love and wanting it, he thinks he loves the first woman who attracts him.

A woman knows that when Love comes to her some man will bring the message, and she mistakes every advance courier on the road for her prince, often, in the exuberance of her longing and the natural exaggeration of youth, giving that longing for Love to two men at once.

When the confusion is confined to one object, tragedy threatens, but when a man or woman "loves" two at the same time, it is Cupid's comedy. No one can love two persons at once, but one may marry one, and find out too late that love for Love and love for individual are as far apart as the east and west coasts of the sea.

If one were to tell the writer of the following letter that she is playing the star part in Cupid's Comedy, she would grow indignant. She has given that white-hot substance for love to two men at once. Those who have known this divine passion know that she doesn't know what love means.

Love is never divisible.

Rose writes:

"I am a young girl of seventeen and deeply in love with two young men. One is a sailor, and the other lives in Brooklyn. I think a great deal of the Brooklyn man, but I love the sailor, too. Both of them care for me. What shall I do?"

Marry a grown man, and who would have learned better, is in the same predicament.

"I am in love with two girls," he writes, "and they love me dearly. They do not know each other, and I don't know what to do. I can't keep it up any longer. I love both, and it will be as hard to part from one as from the other. What am I to do? They love me so wildly it would hurt them for me to leave them."

And that is the unfortunate feature. Wherever there is a Rose or a Mac "loving" two at once there is some one giving a whole heart and receiving a half heart in exchange. It is the suggestion of tragedy necessary to make the comedy.

There is one test when one is not sure of one's own heart. Elizabeth Barrett Browning gives it to all uncertain lovers:

"Unless you can think, when the song is done,
No other is soft in the rhythm;
Unless you can feel, when left by one,
That all men else go with him;
Unless you can know, when upraised by his breath,
That your beauty itself wants proving;
Unless you can swear, 'For life, for death,' Oh, fear to call it loving."

That is Loving—a love for the individual that will survive sorrow and suffering, and penury, and abuse and indifference, and pain, and even time. It is not a love for Love, a sentiment that is satisfied with every new object upon which it can fasten. It is not a feeling that knows a moment's hesitation or doubt.

One never LOVES two. It is too engrossing, too painful, too joyous, too all-satisfying and too complete, to love more than one. There never was, there never is, there never will be a love for two.

Song floats about me—haunts me.
And flutters in my heart.
The lucent blue of the distant sky
Sends melody astart.
The gleam of the sun, the scent of a flower
Make liquid rhythms throng.
Shall my words but sing? Nay, God grant this—
My life be like a song.

"TROT, TROT, TROT" (WITH HESITATION) AT THE THOUGHT OF ALFRED LORD TENNYSON.

Trot, trot, trot,
On the polished floors. Oh, friends,
And I would that my voice could mutter
The fantastic joy our contortions sends.

Oh, well for the gay college boy
That there's a bright record to play.
Oh, well for the merry maid
That the cabarets work all day.

The unstately dance goes on
To the music down in the grill.
But, oh, for the two-step—that banished dance—
Or a sweet little waltz that is still.

Trot, trot, trot—
You might as well teach it to me—
But the tender grace of a day that is done
Will never come back, I see.

* * *

The girl who trots, and does it right
Is asked to trot another night.
The girl who's learned to hesitate
Need never fear the wall-flower's fate.
But she who does the Maxixe sweet,
will soon be whirled right off her feet—
Oh, yes, the girl who can Maxixe', when in a pair seems like a beach.
"While other star indicates how we think it ought to be pronounced.

To Put on Flesh And Increase Weight

A Physician's Advice

Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of food, solid fat making food every day, and still do not put on flesh. Only one ounce, while increase in weight of one pound. All food must stay in the intestines until the nutriment in the food is extracted, and keep gaining all the time. It all boils down to this, that it is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Thin folks stay thin because they haven't the assimilation are not getting the most nourishment in their food. They eat to maintain life and not because of health and strength. Stuffing and cramming down a bowl of meals a day won't make them gain much over a pound. All you get from a single "stay stuffed" meal is the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until the nutriment in the food is extracted, when they pass out of the body.

What such people need is something that will prepare their food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not a secret medicine, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of some of the most effective and powerful flesh - building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet wonderfully effective, and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of a full man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Resinol

Resinol stops scalp itching

and promotes hair health

If you are troubled with dandruff, eczema or other scaly, itching scalp affection, try shampoos with Resinol Soap and an occasional treatment with Resinol Ointment. You will be surprised how quickly the trouble disappears, and the health and beauty of the hair improves. Avoid imitations.

Resinol Soap and Ointment heal ecthe eruptions, clear away pimples and blackheads, and form a most valuable household medicine for sores, burns, boils, piles, etc. Prescription, free, write to Resinol, Dept. 9-S, Baltimore, Md. Both at all druggists. Prescribed by doctors for 20 years.

FRECKLE-FACE

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any of the Rike-Jaynes stores or Houghton & Dutton, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds in February and March have a strong tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more othine is sold in these months. Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

LABOR BEARS EXPENSE CUTS BY RAILROADS

By B. C. FORBES, Business Editor.

Everybody has been telling the railroads to economize. It looks as if they mean to do it.

• • •

And now watch the hubbub that will be raised by the administration, by labor and by the public.

Out of every $5 the railroads earn they pay back approximately $3 to labor. Therefore, when retrenchment is forced, labor must necessarily bear its share of the painful process. And since wages cannot be cut, the alternative—a reduction in the number of workers—has to be resorted to.

• • •

The Pennsylvania Railroad is to lop off a total of 25,000 men, according to last night's dispatches. And a still larger number are to go on short time. The same system has begun to lop off trains here and there, a method of economy that will probably be carried a good deal further. Incidentally, the directors have just reduced both the common and preferred dividends of an important subsidiary, entailing, in addition to a loss of income to individual stockholders, a substantial loss to the parent company's treasury.

Pennsylvania's example is certain to be followed by other roads. Indeed, one line some time ago thinned 6,000 men from its ranks and will, I understand, let others go as work under way is completed.

• • •

How will wholesale dismissals of railway employes and part-pay for thousands of others affect the administration's status?

• • •

And what effect upon the public mind is the abolition of many passenger trains to have?

The railroads must cut their suits according to their cloth. The financial position issued yesterday show that, for the seven months to February 1, operating income decreased over 11 per cent. per mile. The shrinkage in January was more than 25 per cent. But taxes, of course, instead of falling, rose 10 per cent., a feature of the railroad situation that is creating increasing uneasiness.

• • •

Under such circumstances, and forbidden by the Interstate Commerce Commission to recoup themselves by adding to the slightest fraction the rate freight or passenger rates, what are the railroads to do? Cut down, and they turn? So far the Interstate Commission has "awaited" them in season and out of season. State railway commissions, taking their cue from the Federal body, have shown scant sympathy with the railroads' ever-multiplying difficulties. And as for State legislatures, nothing is too harsh or too foolish for them to undertake in the way of harassing transportation companies (and throwing grave additions)—and wholly unwarranted burdens upon the already well-nigh backs of the railroads have been passed with acclamation. In short, the shorter and fatter you has been the jump on top of the railroads and punish them unmercifully.

But now that the day of reckoning is dawning, the thoughtless politicians may find their hands full trying a rod for their own unprotected backs.

• • •

Voters who find a favorite trait has been withdrawn will not be in a pleasant frame of mind. They will want to know the reason why their comfort and convenience have been sacrificed.

• • •

The railway employe who finds himself without a job will also have time and inclination to do some firsthand investigating of the why and the wherefore of his discharge.

The railroads cannot show the same airy contempt for deficits that the Federal government can. The national treasury since 1893 has balanced this year—that is, more has been going out than coming in. The economy that has been recommended for the railroads has not been adopted by the government—it is all much easier to recommend medicine than to take it. The government can indulge in the wildest and grossest "pork barrel" extravagances without fear of consequences, since it is a patient and submissive lot of taxpayers to fall back upon. The taxpayers have no fancy to what politicians are to play, but investors are under no obligation to continue to hand over their cash to the railroads. Even governments cannot coerce an unwilling investor to invest a single dollar.

For my part I am hopeful that conditions will shortly warrant the creation of railroad retrenchment, at least wagewise. The latest intimations are that certain important economies will be excluded from the rate increases to be granted the Eastern roads, care being taken to benefit the weaker companies as much as possible.

The whole railroad position is so full of vitality that I believe that every man in authority to bestir himself to remedy it without one day's needless delay.

"If any man hold off by the railroads seems less worthy than the steel companies and for the whole chain of concerns that are linked to the welfare of the railroads, of them, the Railway Steel Spring Company, failed to declare its dividend yesterday, and that is the current year there is a checked others will be obliged to disappear. Those who have faith enough in their country to invest their savings in its business organizations.

Order New Coal Rates on Railroad

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today ordered the Kanawha & Michigan railway to establish through routes and joint rates on bituminous coal shipments from stations along its line to various points in eastern and southeastern territory. The rates do not exceed the joint rates on such shipments now in effect over the Chesapeake & Ohio railway to the same points of destination. The order is effective June 1.

Island Creek Coal Company

COMMON STOCK DIVIDEND

The directors of the Island Creek Coal Company have declared a quarterly dividend of 50c per share upon the common capital stock of this Company, payable May 1, 1914, to the common stockholders of record at the close of business April 22, 1914.

F. W. HATCHELDER, Treasurer.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weak this afternoon. Business began with prices irregular but with the trend downward. Bears were inactive. Inertia seemed to cause declines. Transactions for the morning in New York did not aggregate 60,000 shares. By midday the Boston list was relatively firmer than the one in New York. In the latter market almost all issues in which there had been action had receded.

By afternoon in New York American Sugar was off 2¾, Northern Pacific 1½, American Tobacco 1½, Panhandle 2, Canadian Pacific ¾, Southern Pacific ⅝, Missouri Pacific ⅜, Reading ¼, American Telephone ¼, American Can ¼, Steel ¼, Amalgamated ½, American Smelting ½, Baltimore & Ohio ⅝, and Union Pacific ¾. Union Pacific's retirement in the February was an unsatisfactory showing.

In Boston at that time American Sugar common was off 2¾, preferred 1¾, Boston & Maine 1, Lake Superior ½, Calumet & Arizona ¾, Granby ⅝, Mohawk ¼ and Osceola ¼. American Agricultural, United Fruit and American Telephone were unchanged.

MARKETS OPENED QUIET.

Both New York and Boston markets opened sluggish, and previously there had been little movement in London, where Americans were irregular and nearer the previous close. But they had a better tone on the whole at the close. It is said that there is less worrying in British financial circles over the Ulster situation. There was much talk of a further reduction in the Bank of England's minimum discount rate. It is now 3, and there would be no surprise if it was cut to 2½ next month. The demand for cash is lessening everywhere. This is largely the result of business depression in the United States. Trade conditions in this country affect the whole world.

TRADING VERY DULL.

When markets opened in this country prices were irregular, but the undertone was shaky, and speculators were almost entirely professional and bearish with few exceptions, sentiment was rather responsible. Incentive to buy or sell were so lacking that during the first hour in New York share transactions totaled but little above 31,000. It was the dullest market for that period known in many weeks. Price changes were small and had little significance. Investment buying was practically at the start, owing to the policy of retrenchment embarked upon by its railroads. Call money was unchanged steady. It was said that the discharge of thousands of railroad men might have a political effect which could not be ignored at Washington. Talk about Steel was unfavorable. The pressure against that issue was not strong. It is said in one dispatch about it: "Its dividend was passed and it was said that the short interest in that issue was relatively large for such a small amount of stock now present."

Stagnation prevailed during the morning, the second hour's trading being as inert as during the first. Among the causes for the market's weakness were Northern Pacific, Panhandle, American Sugar and American Tobacco.

PENN. ROAD ECONOMIES.

The Pennsylvania, considered by many a model road for service and management, is leading the way evidently—as it usually does—in economization. But railroads are facing a crisis. Their receipts have diminished while expenditures increased. Labor, fuel, equipment, taxes and everything else have gone up. Government is limiting them as to charges. The answer, in the minds of railroad officials and directors, is to cut expenses to the bone. The public pays the freight. If the public pays less than the cost of transportation then roads must go bankrupt or limit the extent of service to the amount of receipts. This is the railroad point of view. Students of railways say that the roads of the country have expressed the opinion that American roads were run extravagantly. The railroad managements are going to reply to this criticism by laying off every employe considered unnecessary, by cheapening, if handle freight at the least possible expenses as to hauls and grades as far as possible such passenger trains as do not pay.

BIG DECLINE IN GROSS.

It is estimated that in February, 1914, the railroads' gross revenue will be $2,000,000 less than it was in February, 1913. The exact figures will soon be known. The working force has been reduced from the 1,742,000 to about 137,000 and it is proposed to cut the number to 1,717,000. The object sought to reduce passenger service to an extent that the expenses of the road will be decreased $1,800,000 a year. What the Pennsylvania is doing other lines are expected to follow suit. Another big army of unemployed will be reinforced by many brigades of idle railroad men.

When a big railroad man discussed the prosperity of Dominion railroads a few months ago with one of those in this country, he said: "The United States and Canada, where the roads are owned, have very different policies. In Canada the government is behind the railroads. In the United States the government is in front of them."

A Word of Warning
Hundreds of men and boys have wasted their hard-earned money in worthless automobile instruction.
Before deciding on ANY school, or investing a dollar for such instruction write for a catalog of the Boston Y. M. C. A. Automobile School and learn what the oldest, largest and best equipped auto school in America has done for others. Then see and ride in the cars.
We are in this work to protect your interests and to give you a good paying position.
The Busy Season is now approaching—don't delay matter in sending for catalog. Address Automobile Dept. Room 220 Y. M. C. A. Building.

Used Cars and Accessories.

We Are Proud
Of our Rebuilt Cars. They represent the same ultra-skillful workmanship that makes the 1914 WINTON SIX stand supreme today among the WORLD'S BEST CARS. When one of our REBUILT CARS is ready for delivery, it means there is absolutely no chance for improvement so far as that particular car is concerned. So convinced are we of your complete satisfaction after buying one of our Rebuilt Cars, that we urge, in all cases, that you write your own guarantee, and then, whatever the terms of that guarantee might be, we live up to it, not only to the letter, but in spirit as well. If you have $1,600.00 and want to put it into one of our 1912 Rebuilt Winton Sixes, having all the earmarks of a $5,000.00 machine, you had better act now. At any rate, you owe it to yourself to see what we have to offer before you buy.
Also several 1911 Winton Six Rebuilts at a big saving.

DO YOU MEAN BUSINESS?
IF SO, THIS IS YOUR CHANCE
At the recent Auto Show, while disposing of our regular stock, we took in trade a few automobiles of various well-known makes. They are good cars in every respect. Some of them are almost new and in perfect mechanical condition. If we had the time, or the required space to devote to them, we could sell them at a good profit, as it is, however, we are compelled to make a QUICK CLEAN-UP. We are, therefore, willing to "break even," if necessary, in order to get the larger cars out.

The Mind Does Not Rule Your Destiny

It Is a Question of the Use of the Rudder, or the Forces Within You

"There be three things which are too wonderful for me; yea, four which I know not:

"The way of an eagle in the air; the way of a serpent upon a rock; THE WAY OF A SHIP IN THE MIDST OF THE SEA, and the way of a man with a maid."

At sunset a long train of cars waited on a bridge as a sailing ship passed through the draw.

The ship sailed up the river toward the cold Winter sun; another ship sailed past it going in the OPPOSITE direction.

Only ONE wind was blowing. Yet, of those two ships blown by the same wind, moved by the same power, one sailed EAST and one WEST.

It may be of use to you in your career to think for a few minutes about these two ships and the lesson which they teach—especially to young men.

The man who has sailed, in his life's journey, toward failure and disaster looks always with envy, sometimes with hatred, and very often with an intense sensation of injustice, at the man who passes him going in exactly the opposite direction.

Yet the FORCES that move men bound toward success are exactly the same as those that move other men to failure, humiliation and defeat.

It is all a question of the way in which you use the forces within you—just as on shipboard it is all a question of the use of the common wind which blows.

IT IS A QUESTION OF THE USE OF THE RUDDER.

Two ships pass, each with its sails filled out by the same wind. The difference in direction is accounted for by the handling of the rudder and the adjustment of the sails.

What the force of the wind is to the ship, our varying emotions, passions, ambitions, appetites and aspirations are to us. All of these constitute the power which may be called HUMAN FORCE.

This power differs in different individuals, as the wind differs on different days. It may blow from the east or the west or the north or the south. However it may blow, it can be forced, by proper steering, to send the ship in any direction desired.

It is harder to beat against the wind, of course, and many men have hard struggles to steer themselves to a good port in the face of an adverse start, a hard beginning, or inclinations difficult to overcome.

But in all of us the force exists which can be made to move us in the right direction—the force within us can be MADE to obey our will, if the will be strong and the hand on the rudder steady. This can be proved—for instance:

There is a certain force in human beings called LOVE. This force leads sometimes, and happily it leads usually, to domesticity, morality, care of children and lifelong devotion. Then the force is used properly.

The same human passion leads to murder, suicide, theft, to almost all forms of crime.

There is another human passion called AMBITION.

This human force of ambition, with a Lincoln's conscience to guide it, saves a republic.

The same force guided by Benedict Arnold seeks to betray the nation.

Consider yourself a ship launched on the sea of life under certain conditions—but with the essential condition in your own control.

The wind may be feeble, you may drift for a while or move very slowly—move at least in the right direction.

The wind may blow a gale, and you may feel, as so many do, that you cannot control your emotions and your appetites. But if that comes show at least as much interest in yourself as a sailor does in his ship. Take in sail and fight the storm, instead of going willingly to destruction.

Four things puzzled and impressed the wise man that wrote the nineteenth verse of the thirtieth chapter of Proverbs.

Think today about the third of these things:

"The way of a ship in the midst of the sea."

The way of a human being in the midst of life is like that of a ship on the ocean.

Make up your mind that your own way at least shall be controlled by the rudder of conscience, and learn from the passing ships a lesson of use in your own life.

Curley May Yet Realize How Little the People Appreciate His Strange Economies

Governor Walsh took the right view of the situation when he signed Representative Niland's bill giving the city workmen a two-weeks' vacation. The bill was passed by a substantial majority in the Legislature and contains a referendum provision by which the people of Boston will decide whether or not they wish to give the city men a vacation.

It was regrettable that Mayor Curley saw fit to oppose this measure. As a member of the Board of Aldermen he had, with apparent sincerity, declared that the city men were entitled to a vacation.

Mr. Curley ought to have someone show him that Boston is a rich, not a poor, city and that she can afford to make the best and not the worst conditions in which our people may live.

The AMERICAN ventures the prediction that the people of Boston will vote to give the city men a vacation, and this will afford Mayor Curley an opportunity to realize how little the people of Boston appreciate his new and strange economies.

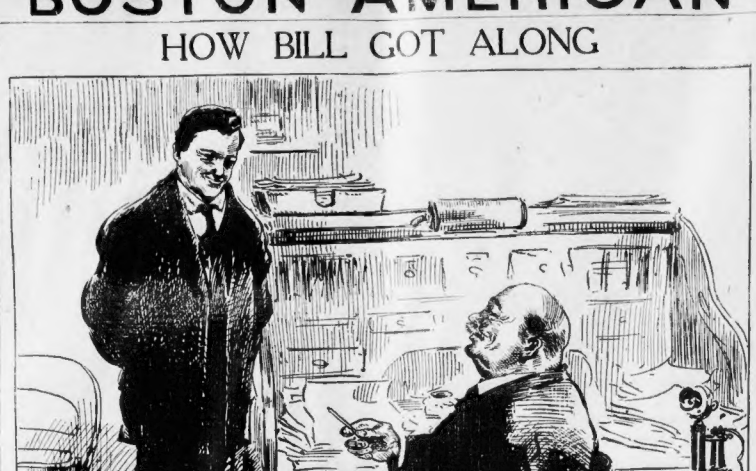
HOW BILL GOT ALONG



Things went along in their humdrum way with Bill for several weeks. He went to the bank each week, depositing every cent he could out of his small salary.

One afternoon the boss called him into his private office. Bill commenced to wonder what was up now. He couldn't think of anything he had done—except be on the job early. The boss said to him: "Bill, I've been watching you ever since you first came here. I don't know why, but you seem to be a bit different from the rest of the fellows out there. So now there's an opening that requires a good, steady man, and, after looking over the force, I can't see any one that I think will fill the place any better than you. So, for a starter, I'm going to give you twenty dollars a week from now on, and if you make good in your new place you may get more, so get busy and show us a little speed." He then explained to Bill his new duties.

When Bill told his friend Jim about it that night, Bill was so happy that he did not at first notice Jim's lack of interest in the good news. "Why, what's the matter, Jim; doesn't it interest you to hear of my getting my salary doubled?"

"Oh, yes; yes, sure, Bill; of course I do," answered Jim.

"Well, then, cheer up a bit, can't you? What's on your mind besides your hat?"

"I hate to tell you, Bill; but I suppose I've got to tell somebody, and maybe you can suggest some way out of my trouble—the t-t-truth is, Bill, I got in that crap game around the corner there the other night and besides losing what money I had of my own—I lost a hundred and fifty dollars belonging to the office. I wasn't sober, Bill, or it would never have happened, but now I can't see any way to pay it back before they get wise. So I suppose it's the little window with the iron grating over it for yours truly."

Marriage---and the Girl of Today

By REV. MABEL M. IRWIN

Society of Sanitary and Moral Prophylaxis and Lecturer for the Public Education Association in New York.

It seems easy enough to tell a young girl that she should do this or that thing and leave the other thing undone when advising her in relation to the world of men and the meaning and purpose of marriage. What rule of conduct and what ideal of marriage have we to offer as a safe guide?

He who would attempt to make special rules to fit every case, prescribe methods to meet every exigency, must be bold indeed. For who shall enter that holy of holies—a young girl's emotional life, where angels might "fear to tread"? But there are some fundamentals—both yeas and nays—with which a young woman must take counsel, if she would make safe passage into that unknown—because unexperienced—land, the homeland of family life.

The girl who marries without reciprocal love wrongs not only herself but her husband, and, through the unloved children which come to her arms, wrongs society as well.

A one-sided love is not enough—neither an "old man's darling nor a young man's slave," or any kind of unmutual love can make holy the marriage vow.

The girl who gives herself to any man in whose touch she does not delight does violence to her woman's nature and invites misery as the principal guest to her wedding feast.

Respect and admiration are not enough. Even mental congeniality or interest in the same things is not sufficient basis for a happy marriage.

Love—as relates to fitness for physical union—is a temperamental thing, a chemical affinity of the atoms drawing each to the other, and must be the basis of every satisfactory marriage.

The girl who permits the caress of a man from whom she feels a physical shrinking soils her own purity, and is a confusion in thought to the man who offers such caress.

Woman is the balance wheel of the whole machinery of emotional sex life, and if she be false to her instinct, then to the male of the species she becomes an enigma, if not a snare.

That this temperamental attraction should be backed with respect and admiration for the man's character goes without saying. If the love belongs only to the physical—only to the "biological imperative" of the atoms—it will not bear the close and continued association of the family life. But to marry without this physical attraction does violence to every fiber of a woman's body, and offers indignity to her woman's soul.

While waiting for this perfect love to complete her life a girl should carry herself as if she were waiting for a crown—the crown of wifehood and motherhood—to be placed upon her head.

Shall a woman marry for a home? Of course she shall! For what else should she marry? For money? For houses? For fine raiment? But she must not forget that a home is something more than a house or an establishment—be it ever so grand. Home is a place where love is, first the love of two, and then of three or more—the little ones that come to complete it.

How foolish—how worse than foolish—how fatal to happiness in marriage, then, is that attitude of many young girls of today who promise themselves that they will marry but will have no children!

They might as well say that they will marry but will have no home!

This attitude of mind makes both impossible. If they are seeking simply a care-free existence, let them not marry; for while children bring warmth of love, happiness and joy to a household, they bring also a blessed responsibility. This responsibility no girl who is fit for marriage can or should seek to escape.

"Home is wherever a good woman lays her head."

We might add that every good woman is at heart a mother. If she has no children of her own, then will she mother other children. If she fails in this, then will she mother some art, some calling, some cause, for mother something she must, else all that is best in her dies.

Woman not only makes the home, but in the strictest sense she IS the home—the fleshly home of the unborn race. Viewed in this light we see that the coming of children should be included in every girl's marriage plans. Then and then only will she realize the duty of choosing wisely her mate.

It is because she has cheapened womanhood by selling herself in marriage instead of giving herself in marriage to love and motherhood that she has made possible the continuance of the double standard of sex morals that prevail.

Let our sons understand that they will be chosen by our daughters, not for their money or their ability to keep an establishment, but because of their virile manhood, untained by looseness; their fitness to become fathers to welcome babes, and sweet companions to wife and mother. Then shall they keep themselves clean in thought and habits of life, as they demand our daughters shall be. The "double standard" will thus become a thing of the past.

Woman is passing to her rightful place. She is on her way from bondage to freedom, on her way to find for herself her God-appointed sphere of activity. She is but half way in her ascent as yet. She is passing through the sphere of man's activity and competes with him at every turn. But her place is far higher than even she—for the most part—yet imagines; her goal is higher than she herself but feebly guesses.

When woman finds her sphere—not the segment of a sphere, as in times past—she will find that it is nothing less than the whole round world. She will find that her place includes the "Council Chambers of the Nation," as well as the counsel chambers of her own home.

O, girl of tomorrow, I salute you!

The Undertone

WHEN I was very young I used to feel the dark despairs of youth;
Out of my little griefs I would invent great tragedies and woes;
Not only for myself, but for all those I held most dear
I would invent vast sorrows, in my melancholy moods of thought.
Yet down deep, deep in my heart there was an undertone of rapture;
It was like a voice from some other world calling softly to me,
Saying things joyful.

As I grew older, and Life offered bitter gall for me to drink,
Forcing it through clenched teeth when I refused to take it willingly,
When Pain prepared some special anguish for my heart to bear,
And all the things I longed for seemed to be wholly beyond my reach—
Yet down deep, deep in my heart there was an undertone of rapture.
It was like a Voice, a Voice from some other world calling to me,
Bringing glad tidings.

Now when I look about me, and see the great injustices of men,
See Idleness and Greed waited upon by luxury and mirth,
See prosperous Vice ride by in state, while footsore Virtue walks;
Now when I hear the cry of need rise up from lands of shameful wealth—
Yet down deep, deep in my heart there is an undertone of rapture.
It is like a Voice—it is a Voice—calling to me and saying
Loves rules triumphant.

Now when each mile-post on the path of life seems marked by headstones
And one by one dear faces that I loved are hid away from sight;
Now when in each familiar home I see a vacant chair,
And in the throngs once formed of friends I meet unrecognized eyes—
Yet down deep, deep in my heart there is an undertone of rapture,
It is the Voice, it is the Voice forever saying unto me:
"Life is Eternal!"

When the Huntington-Colton letters were read in court, a ruling was made that the names of what "statesman" had therein found malodorous commemoration should be omitted. Wherefore the above infuriating blanks.

In the next letter you will please observe how the astute Mr. Huntington is trying to pay a debt due from the S. P. to the government with lands which the government gave the S. P. for nothing.

. . . I am doing all I can to have the government take 6,000,000 acres of land and give the R. R. Co. credit for $15,000,000. . . . I wish you would have the newspapers take the ground that this land ought to be taken by the government and held for the people, so that when they wanted it they could have it; something that the demagogues can vote and work for. . . .

Just think, how much better—$15,000,000, to say the least—it would have been, however, had the "demagogues" never given those 6,000,000 acres of the public lands to the S. P. at all! Still, it was one way to pay $15,000,000 of debt, and the idea did Mr. Huntington credit. Who should wonder, after reading the above, that Mr. Huntington died worth millions!

You have seen how confidently the S. P. worked in Arizona and New Mexico. In the following you will observe that it was not without importance as a vicious force in Virginia and New York.

Says the busy Mr. Huntington to his "Dear Colton":

. . . I have been down here all over the country to bring influences to bear on their M. C. They have considerable money, as they have CONVINCED several parties that I thought we had cure. . . . I sent a man to Richmond, Va., on Saturday, and one to Albany today, to get resolutions passed by the Legislatures against subsidies. If I can get them, I think it will control two members of the (Pacific) R. R. Committee; and we want them very much. Of course, you will see the NECESSITY OF KEEPING SUCH MATTERS TO YOURSELVES. . . .

Mr. Huntington now records a skirmish and a victory:

. . . Sherrel telegraphed me to come to Washington in great haste, as Lawrence was to pass his bill at once; so I went over and got the case, to recall it from the House back to the com.; so the demagogue from Ohio cannot trouble us before the 6th of July. In the meantime WE WILL BE WORKING ON OUR LAND PROPOSITION IN THE SENATE. Get the necessary legislation from Arizona. . . . Of course, you will see the importance of the public not knowing anything of this.

Mr. Hayes, who served a White House four years, and then retired to promote a Buckeye pottery business, to decay, had been inaugurated, and in June named one Fremont to be Governor of Arizona. Mr. Huntington makes haste to stir up "Friend Colton" concerning that new executive:

Fremont has been appointed Governor of Arizona. . . . I think it important that you see him on his arrival and see that he does not fall into the hands of bad men. He is very friendly to us now. . . .

Mr. Gould descends upon Washington, and Mr. Huntington sorrowfully records the loss of a Senator. This same Senator was later, by many years, indicted for land steals in a day of Roosevelt, but died in a rather curious manner before being tried:

. . . Jay Gould went to Washington about two weeks since, and I found saw Mitchell, Senator from Oregon. Since which time money has been used very freely in Washington, and some parties have been hard at work that never work except for ready cash, and Senator Mitchell is not for us as he was, although he says he is; but I know he is not. Gould has large amounts of cash, and he pays it without stint to carry his points.

The indefatigable Mr. Scott scores a railroad point:

. . . Matthews and Windom have been put on Senate (Pacific) R. R. Com. in place of Howe and Perry. This looks as though the Texas and P. (Scott) had control of the Senate so far as appointing coms. are concerned. I am not happy today.

If you have ties and rails at Yuma, I think it would be well to keep a few men at work extending the S. P. It will help us to W. I would do but very little, just enough to say "work," but not enough to feel the cost.

Mr. Huntington had promised President Hayes that if the latter condoned his bridge outlawry at Yuma the S. P. would push hot-foot eastward across Arizona. In the final sentence of the above he is laying the bedplates of a little scheme to bamboozle Mr. Hayes.

In the next Mr. Huntington becomes peevish, even gloomy, and addresses "Friend Colton" in these words:

You can have no idea how I am annoyed by this Washington business. If we are not hurt this session it will be BECAUSE WE PAY MUCH MONEY TO PREVENT IT. . . . I think Congress will try very hard to pass some kind of a bill to make us commence paying on what we owe the government. . . . Every year the light grows more and more expensive. I do not think we can get any legislation this session for extension of land grants, or for changing line of road UNLESS WE PAY MORE FOR IT THAN IT IS WORTH.

Mr. Huntington, in October, 1877, is still not pleased, and continues inclined to acrid views:

. . . The committees are made up for the 45th Congress. I think the (Pacific) R. R. Com. is right; but the Com. on Territories I do not like. A different one was promised to me. I think there never was so many strikers in Washington before.

The letter just quoted is significant. It was written in October. Congress would not—and did not—convene until December. The committees were made up, however, in Congressional anticipation, and Mr. Huntington had the committee lists. Which shows, both ear and eye, how completely he was on the inexplicable inside as to House and Senate affairs. The public did not know the committees; but Mr. Huntington, working for a rattlesnake railroad, knew.

Ten days later Mr. Huntington sends to "Friend Colton" for help:

. . . Safford had better be in Washington at the commencement of the regular session, to get Congress to confirm the Acts of Arizona. I saw Axtell, Governor of New Mexico, and he said he thought if we would send him such a bill as we wanted to have passed into a law, he could get it passed with very little money; when, if we sent a man there, they would stick him for large amounts. . . . I THINK OUR LAND MATTERS IN WASHINGTON HAVE BEEN LOOKED AFTER.

Keep that final sentence anent "land matters" in mind. There is a murderous story which goes with it, a story you will hear before reaching the end of this article.

And again Mr. Huntington writes:

. . . I notice what you say of ——, the Florida Senator. He is a clever fellow, BUT DON'T GO TO ANY MONEY ON HIM. The $70,000 that I let —— have are tied up for ten years. . . . We need his help in Congress very much, and I have no doubt we shall have it. . . . We should be very careful to get a U. S. Senator from California. . . . I gave today a letter to Senator —— . . . He is a good fellow enough, and our friend, after he is CONVINCED. . . . After the Senate (Pacific) Railroad Committee came up, Scott went to Washington in special train and got one of his put on, but they did not give him the coms. Cordon of Georgia was taken off and Bond of Missouri put on.

To Be Continued.

J. L. P.—Henry Thomas Buckle, author of the "History of Civilization in England," was born at Lee, Kent, England, in 1821, and died at Damascus, Syria, in 1862, having just passed his fortieth year. Buckle was one of the sincerest lovers of truth that the world has ever known, and it may be said, with perfect accuracy, that he died for truth, having literally worn himself out searching for the ways and means of advancing its spread among men. No lesser brain or purer soul than Buckle's was ever clothed in human form.

R. J. W.—You should immediately begin to brush up on your geography. The Argentine Republic has an area of 1,116,000 square miles, while Cuba has but 44,000 square miles. In other words, you could put twenty-six Cubas into the Argentine Republic.
